BYRD PLANS TO VISIT THE LE BOURGET FIELD

WHERE HE AND COMPANIONS
WOULD HAVE LANDED

HAD RAIN AND FOG NOT HANDI-CAPPED THEIR PLANE

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, July 5.—Continuing his round of affairs in the French capital, Commander Richard E. Byrd planned to visit Le Bourget field today, where he and his companions would have landed in their plane but for rain and fog. Officers of the 34th regiment of aviation arranged a program to receive the American flier.

With Byrd and Bernt Balchen present, prominent French officials and crowds of Parisians yesterday held ceremonies at the monument of the American volunteers with the French army and at the Washington equestrian monument, the occasion being Independence Day.

Yesterday's tributes contrasted strangely with last year's Independence Day occurrences at the same two monuments. Last year, during the slump of the franc, vandals desecrated the monument of the American volunteers by hammering off the left arm and leg of the figure of the American soldier, while a 5-mile procession of French veterans, gathered from the entire country, marched silently past the equestrian monument as a protest against the United States government's attitude on the debt question.

Paul Doumer, president of the senate, and other French officials praised American courage and scientific advancement during ceremonies yesterday at the Volunteers monument. The monument was covered with flowers. Ceremonies were held up half an hour awaiting the possible arrival of George Noville and Bert Acosta, members of the America's crew. But the fliers, who had returned to their hotel long after midnight after sight-seeing in Montmartre, were still asleep and did not appear.

Picnickers and injured three, probably fatally. The dead were Charles Little, 55, his wife, Mary, 50, and two small children. Three other children were removed from the debris unconscious. The car was carried 500 feet by the engine.

James Douglas, 45, was killed when, on a dare, he jumped from a bridge and landed head first in the Monongahela river 110 feet below.

With Thousands of Tourists in Brainerd Lake Region, But 1 Fatal Accident Recorded

CAR CRASHES INTO A TREE NEAR RESORT

LESLIE MORRISON, 19, DART-
MOUTH COLLEGE STUDENT,
INSTANTLY KILLED

DAVID McQUILLAN HAS HIS NOSE
BROKEN, 3 OTHERS SUSTAIN
MINOR INJURIES

With thousands of tourists motoring to the Brainerd Lake Region intent on spending the week-end and Fourth of July holiday here, but one serious accident was recorded.

Reported to have thrown a wheel while driving to Breezy Point Lodge, a holiday outing of five college students from the Twin Cities ended in disaster when the automobile crashed into a tree near the entrance to the grounds, instantly killing Leslie Morrison, 19, son of J. G. Morrison of 1049 Goodrich Avenue, St. Paul, and severely injuring David McQuillan, 332 Osceola Avenue, St. Paul, reported sustaining a broken nose.

Reported bruised and sustaining scratches and contusions were John Ramaley of 215 South Chatsworth Street, St. Paul; Eugene Kelly, 4751 Fremont Avenue South, Minneapolis; Harold Remington, 3344 Irving Avenue South, Minneapolis.

Morrison was a student at Dartmouth college and was spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison. The mother was communicated with at her home. The father is a general freight agent of the Northern Pacific railway now in Montana on inspection.

Kelly is a student at the University of Minnesota. Remington was graduated last year from West High, Minneapolis, and was employed at Jamestown, N. D.

The boys had left the Twin Cities on Friday evening and were spending the holidays at a cottage on Gull Lake, J. H. Grill, 1720 Dupont Avenue South, Minneapolis, is reported aiding to pick up the dead and injured.

John Henrich, Minneapolis, who has a cottage on Gull Lake, is reported to have driven on the road immediately after the accident and to avoid striking those lying in the highway, ran his car near the wreckage and damaged his own car.

The death car, a Pontiac, is owned by young Kelly and people report the boys had tried to have the shimmying front wheels repaired at Pequot.

The coroner, D. E. Whitney, of Brainerd, viewed the scene of the accident, declaring Morrison's death to have been accidental. He certified the cause of death as being from internal injuries and fractured skull, that the automobile had struck a tree while traveling at high speed, throwing the car to the left side of the road and 80 feet from the road.

The boys who survived were taken to the lodge for treatment and doctors from Brainerd and nearby resorts were called. The body of Morrison was taken to Brainerd and there turned over to a St. Paul undertaker on Sunday noon and then taken to St. Paul by automobile.

The Service Motor Co. of Brainerd brought down the wrecked car and found that vandals during the night had stripped it of three tires, speedometer and even the Pontiac name plate. The father of young Kelly, Frank E. Kelly, owner of the Globe Laundry Co., Minneapolis, was in Brainerd to see about the car.

Sunday Accidents

Sunday accidents included these. A car jumped the Trunk Highway No. 19 curve about four miles from Brainerd Sunday afternoon and lost the front wheels. No one was injured.

A car was ditched near 13th and Oak streets, with no one hurt.

An alleged drunken driver smashed a coupe in the business section of Brainerd and was jailed.

AUTO MISHAPS DROWNINGS TAKE TOLL OF 8 LIVES

St. Paul, July 5.—(UP)—Although a minimum of fireworks accidents were reported during the holiday period, automobile mishaps and drownings took a toll of eight lives in Minnesota. Scores of minor crashes were reported as motorists took to the highways.

Edward Hanley, 38, Minneapolis, drowned in Lake Minnetonka. Tom Maurey, 17, was drowned in Lake Sheik near Tracy, and Richard Larson, 9, was killed when he fell from the bank into the Cascade river and was carried over a falls.

Automobile accidents were:

WHOLE FAMILY WAS KILLED IN TEXAS TOWN

TEXAS AUTHORITIES ARE SEEK-ING TO SOLVE THE MYSTERY

THREE NEGROES WHO WORKED FOR FAMILY ARE BEING SOUGHT

Alanreed, Texas, July 5.—(UP)—Seeking to find three negroes who worked at the home of Frank Weatherby near here, local officials were at a loss today to account for the killing of the entire Weatherby family.

The bodies of Weatherby, his wife and two children, a girl 6 and a boy 4, were found in the home yesterday.

Nothing had been seen of the Weatherby family for several days and neighbors became alarmed. An investigation was made and the bodies found. Weatherby was lying in one room shot through the head, while the bodies of the others were found under a mattress in an adjoining room. Apparently Mrs. Weatherby and the children had been killed by a blow from a crow-bar found nearby.

The family motor car was missing and officials are seeking the negroes in the hope they may be able to throw some light on the quadruple killing.

ALL KINDS OF TROUBLE COME TO RICHARD GRACE

Barking Sands, Island of Kauai, July 5.—(UP)—Cruiseair, the plane in which Richard Grace hoped to fly from here to the mainland today rested at the hangar here almost a total wreck.

After three unsuccessful attempts to leave the ground, Grace got away yesterday only to be forced to return in a few minutes by a faulty rudder.

Three times previously, Grace suffered punctures as his plane lurked down the runway.

While Grace was delayed here by a broken propeller, fire trouble and weather, Army Officers Maitland and Hegenberger completed the long hop to Hawaii from San Francisco.

"BIG SHOW" OF WEST STAGED FOR COOLIDGE

THE 10TH ANNUAL TRI-STATE
ROUND-UP OF WEST
TODAY

MONTANA, WYOMING AND SOUTH
DAKOTA ARE REPRESENTED

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Belle Fourche, S. D., July 5.—Hardy boys and girls of cow country—who choose mad bulls for playmates or rattlesnakes for pets—gathered in the arena here today to stage for President Coolidge the "big show" of the west.

The show is the tenth annual tri-state roundup of Montana, Wyoming and South Dakota and is considered a tame affair unless necks of a steer or two are twisted beyond recognition and the performers nurse injuries for months afterward.

In honor of Mr. Coolidge's presence the show is being made "bigger and better than ever" this year.

It opened yesterday with preliminary events of bull dogging, fancy riding, roping and wild horse racing. Fox Hastings, woman bulldogger, showed her skill in slowly riding the horns of an obstinate steer until, by a dexterous twist of her slender wrists, she nailed his head to dirt. She and Tad Lucas, 24-year-old darling rider who won the national championship the last three years, are the stars of the show.

"Dakota Clyde" Jones, riding master at the summer White House, who is considered the president's entry, came through the first day of elimination and said he was "rarin' to go" for the bucking bronchos today.

More than $13,000 in prizes have been offered and because of the president's presence, competition is exceedingly keen.

A special box has been constructed in front of the grand stand near the chutes where steers are run out for America's big gladiatorial combat. Mr. Coolidge will leave the summer White House before noon and come here by special train from Hermosa, leaving here after the show is over for the return trip.

Yesterday he celebrated his 55th birthday with a lawn party for the Terry, Montana, cowboy band, Boy Scouts of Custer, South Dakota, 5,000 citizens and tourists who called upon him. He heard the band enthusiastically sing special songs for him, including one expressing welcome to "Cal and Your Gai." They shouted lustily that he was the "greatest guy in the world" and that the second greatest "guy" was Cal's Gai Grace.

It was very informal in contrast to presidential receptions in Washington but everyone had a good time and movie men obtained the best pictures they had had since they came out here.

They photographed him cutting his birthday cake and serving it to cowboys and Boy Scouts, and they obtained pictures of Mrs. Coolidge posing her husband with her hand movie machine.

Mr. Coolidge received many gifts, including three cakes, two pairs of enaps, boots, spurs, horse and all riding attire.

BERTAUD TO FLY FROM NEW YORK TO ROME, ITALY

Cleveland, July 5.—(UP)—Lloyd W. Bertaud, air mail flier, left Cleveland today for New York to finish preparations for a flight from New York to Rome.

Bertaud's plane, it is reported, is to be a Fokker monoplane powered by a Jupiter motor, which will have a flying range of 6,300 miles, which will be ample to carry it to Rome.

Haines aims to remain aloft 13 days.

CRITICAL PERIOD IS REACHED IN NAVAL PARLEY

DISCUSSION RESUMED ON CRUISER
LIMITATIONS

BRITISH DELEGATION FIRM IN VOICING ITS DEMANDS

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, July 5.—The most critical period of the naval armaments conference was expected to be reached today as the technical commission resumed discussions of cruiser limitations.

The British delegation was insisting on a 7,500 ton limit on cruisers while the American delegation was equally firm that the tonnage must not be reduced below 10,000 tons.

In spite of the difficulties over the question, on which the fate of the conference probably rests, the conference has made considerable progress. The technical commission has already agreed that all vessels under 600 tons shall not be subject to limitation; that destroyers shall be divided into two classes, one of 1,850 tons and the other 1,400 tons; and that the maximum size of submarines shall be 1,800 tons.

Should the commission be able to agree now on the size of cruisers, the conference's principal remaining task would be to fix a ratio for each nation. After thus disposing of the agenda of the conference, it was understood there will be at least a technical discussion of the British demand on capital ships. The discussion, however, was not expected to jeopardize the conference.

LIEUT. CHAMPION BREAKS SEAPLANE ALTITUDE RECORD

Washington, July 5.—(UP)—Lieutenant Carlton C. Champion, Jr., U. S. N., today had broken his seaplane altitude record by nearly a mile.

I. O. O. F. PREPARE FOR BIG OUTING

More Definite Plans Laid at Jericho Outing Association Meeting Held in Brainerd

HUGE PICNIC JULY 24

One of the Largest in History of Association is to be Held at Lum Park in This City

Preparations for one of the biggest outing and picnic days ever staged in northern Minnesota are well under way as manifested at a regular meeting of the Jericho Outing Association of the I. O. O. F. held at Brainerd, Thursday evening, June 30th.

The outing will be held on Sunday, July 24th at Lum Park, Brainerd, this date being selected by the association this spring. This year sees the third annual outing of the association, which comprises practically all lodges in this district, and this outing promises well to surpass anything yet attempted along this line.

The entire day will be taken up by entertainment, the principal feature of the forenoon being addresses by the Grand Master and Grand Secretary of the order as well as other notables of the order who have been invited and are expected to respond favorably. In addition to this there is an elaborate program of water and other sports such as racing, horse shoe pitching, kitten ball games, various exhibitions and so forth to attract the crowd, which it is expected will number around five thousand people.

A big picnic dinner on the grounds together with several concessions have been arranged for and at three o'clock the center of interest will be a big ball game featuring the fast Brainerd Odd Fellows team and the St. Paul Odd Fellows, one of the fastest of Twin City amateur teams.

The association has undergone considerable expense in landing this feature as well as securing the Brainerd Boy's band, a very fine musical organization of high reputation. The band will be on hand throughout the entire day at practically all events and there should be no lack of good music with this band of some fifty pieces.

Good entertainment promises a well-filled evening, one of the best numbers being a diving exhibition of difficult and fancy aquatic gymnastics by "Dixie" Thompson, a former champion in this line. Assured of an evening's entertainment as well as a full day of merriment, the Odd Fellows and those who choose to celebrate with them, will ever cherish a memory of this gala occasion.

In case of threatening weather shelter is well provided on these big picnic grounds, the principal building being one of the largest dance pavilions in this section of the state. With these conditions provided for, as well as provisions for safety and comfort, the success of this third annual I. O. O. F. Outing on July 24th is positively assured.

3-DAYS' HOLIDAY TOLL OF DEAD AND INJURED

injured over the Fourth in the Philadelphia district.

Baltimore, Md., July 5.—The Baltimore section's holiday toll was five killed and at least 25 injured.

Fifteen were injured by fireworks here. Horses and mules were led from a barn fired by a "giant cracker."

Elmer Higgs, 38, salesman, celebrated the Fourth by fatally diving three stories to the ground from the Peninsula Hotel at Salisbury. Once before he had tried suicide on an Independence day.

Columbus, O., July 5.—Ohio observed one of the sanest of its Fourth of Julys, according to reports today.

Traffic accidents, drownings and deaths due to holiday celebrations over the three-day period took a total of 12 lives. None of the deaths was directly traceable to fireworks.

(By United Press)

More than 200 persons lost their lives in the nation's three-day celebration of the 151st anniversary of its independence, reports to the United Press from every section of the country showed today.

Literally hundreds were injured. The celebration assumed the proportions of a major disaster, similar to the toll exacted by devastating floods and hurricanes, as reports continued coming in.

With some sections still to report, the death list stood at 274 at 10 A. M.

The majority of the deaths were due to automobile accidents as people everywhere swarmed on crowded roads for holiday outings. Drownings accounted for scores more. Deaths from firecrackers, pistols and explosives used in celebration were smaller, due to the universal appeal for a "safe and sane" Fourth, but a surprisingly large number lost their lives, while hundreds were burned or mutilated.

The greatest toll was taken in the metropolitan New York area and surrounding New Jersey, where 19 were killed in traffic accidents, 17 were drowned and one death was due to fireworks. More than 250 were treated in New York City hospitals for burns received from fireworks.

The next highest toll was in Indiana, where 41 lives were lost. In New York state, outside of the city, 20 were killed.

The death list to date follows:
New York City and New Jersey, 37; New York state (outside New York City) 20; New England, 8; Pennsylvania, 14; Delaware and Maryland, 9; Washington, D. C., 5; Virginia, 5; North Carolina, 5; Tennessee, 4; Georgia, 1; Florida, 1; Ohio, 18; Michigan, 12; Indiana, 41; Chicago district, 11; Denver district, 5; St. Louis, 3; Missouri (outside St. Louis), 4; Oklahoma, 4; Texas, 3; Kansas, 2; Nebraska, 1; Louisiana, 7; California, 1; Oregon, 4; Washington, 6; Nevada, 1; Iowa, 4; Minnesota, 7; North Dakota, 1; South Dakota, 1; Idaho, 2. Total—274.

HEDDA HOYT TELLS— ABOUT CRASHING THE GATE

By HEDDA HOYT

New York, July 5. — (UP)—It's pretty hard to crash your way through Fashion's gate. Too many women are elbowing you out of standing room on the outer side of the gate and dozens of others are sitting on upholstered seats inside with rain checks in their hands.

It's simple enough to look passable in a crowd, providing the crowd is large enough. But to be one of the few who are pointed out as looking smart is quite another matter. So many women are well dressed these days that the poorly-dressed or the conspicuously dressed person is apt to be the one to create excitement among her own sex.

Looking over a smart audience of a Broadway production last night I saw dozens of beautifully dressed women scattered about me. Only two women in the theatre held the glances of their sex. One, a robust young matron sitting beside an Arrow Collar type of husband, held all feminine eyes because she dared wear her hair in a style which would be unbecoming to most women. Her long taffy-colored hair was as straight as a Christmas candle. It was literally peeled back from her forehead and behind the ears and twisted into a tight fold at the back of the head. Somehow she reminded one of a blond seal. Long pendant earrings of brilliant accentuated the sleekness of the head. Had this woman been a brunette this manner of hair-dressing would have proven uninteresting. One naturally expects blondes to wear frivolous hair-does.

The other woman creating interest wore a huge yellow Spanish shawl embroidered in rose tones, a black fringed frock, black slippers with red heels, a black silk felt hat 'a la Carmen' with a red rose on the under brim, and a chin strap. Only the eccentricity of her outfit elevated her above the equally costly-garbed girls about her.

Then too, there was a little blonde person in her teens who had one of the newer haircuts. The hair was but two inches long over the entire head and curled upwards into ringlets with bangs over the forehead. A bronze and orchid changeable taffeta period gown with tiny puffed sleeves, off-shoulder neckline and long skirt gave her a Dresden doll effect.

Elsewhere in the crowd were straightlined gowns, bloused gowns, marcelled bobs, etc. All unnoticed! That's why we say, "One must use one's pate to crash a gate."

OUTLINES HIS WOES IN STYLE OF DAVID

English Clergyman Tells of Tribulations.

To write a modern parody of the Psalms of David has been often tried, but seldom with much success beyond achieving an occasional smart phrase without real application or point. Undeterred by the previous failures of others, however, a much perturbed London clergyman has sought this vehicle for the easing of the woes that beset his soul, and by the judicious use of solemn language diluted with a liberal allowance of up-to-the-minute slang, he has accomplished something that may, perhaps, be regarded as worth while. Thus, complaining of those who resent his air of solemnity, he writes as follows:

"Be he grave or serious in his demeanor: seeking to uphold the dignity of his cloth.

"He is said to be standoffish, 'pi,' and upbush: yea, the ungodly call him 'Holy Joe.'"

Similarly, he finds that, if he tries to be gay, greeting all and sundry with a merry jest, there are many whom he displeases, so that, in respect of his demeanor, he is very like the old man in the fable of "The Old Man and His Ass," who, trying to please everybody, ended up by pleasing nobody and lost his ass into the bargain. This good clergyman has his problems also with young men and maidens, for if he holds aloof from them they dislike him much:

"So that when to him they should turn as to a friend in need, with them he cutteth no ice."

It is, however, when he seeks to interfere with the widespread habit of tipping that he gets into really hot water:

"Again, if beholding overmuch intemperance in his flock: he exhorteth all men to abstain from strong drink.

"He is said to be a killjoy and inhuman: a very Stiggins whose mind is straightened.

"But if he entereth a tavern and putteth his foot upon the rail of brass: there be those who say, 'Behold a wine-bibber.'"

"So when he bloweth froth, he committeth iniquity: and when he bloweth it not, he is like a slinger."

The conclusion to which the parson comes, surrounded by perplexities so dire, is doubtless the best thing in his Twentieth-century psalm:

"Let the servant therefore walk in the steps of his Master: and care naught for the opinion of men."

It is an undoubtedly wise decision and has the added merit of possessing a far-reaching application.

"Hand Shague" Common

"Hand shague," which caused President Coolidge to carry his hand in a bandage as a result of too-much handshaking, is a very troublesome complaint, according to medical men. It belongs to the family of writers' cramp and tennis knee and other complaints that can be traced to a definite pursuit. Many persons in public life have suffered from it. Only the other day Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the British premier, suffered an attack of it after shaking hands with 600 women at a political meeting. The prince of Wales suffered from it badly on each of his tours to distant parts of the empire. Lloyd George and the earl of Oxford and Asquith have both been laid up with it. And Bernard Shaw has been heard to declare that he will never risk it again.

The Unkindest Cut

After months of careful nurturing, the fledgling mustache was just beginning to be noticeable on the lip of its proud young possessor, who walked manfully into the barber shop and demanded a shave. The hot towels were soothing and he half napped as the conscientious barber scraped off fuzz and lather with practiced strokes. The process completed, the youth roused himself and glanced into the mirror at his clean-shaven lip. Consternation flushed beneath the tawern.

"Where is my mustache?" he exclaimed.

"I haven't seen it," replied the puzzled barber.

Ever Since the Days of Old

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright)

BETTY BARROW'S maid came in with the cup of steaming cocoa with whipped cream which she always had before going down for her evening performance at the theater.

"Oh, Miss Betty, just you look what I done find in this hat I bought me this afternoon." And the faithful Cora displayed a large linen handkerchief with signatures of every description embroidered on it. "It was tucked in the brim of that there hat and I couldn't get my head in nohow."

"Cora, perhaps we're on the edge of romance," cried Betty and examined the handkerchief. "Why, this is one of those fad handkerchiefs we all had about ten years ago. I had one myself. We used to get all our friends to write their names on them and then embroider over them. Oh! Betty bobbed up from her comfortable position in so great a hurry as to jeopardize the whipped cream and cocoa. "Cora! Can you believe it? Here's the name of my best girl friend in those days—look—Alice Moore—I never heard of anything so exciting. Where did you get this hat? I shall try to trace Alice and see how the world has treated her."

"I got that there hat down at a second-hand store in Seventh avenue," said Cora, "and I paid one dollar for it."

"Well, you hop right along and offer him another dollar if he will find you the name and address of the girl who sold him this hat."

As a matter of fact, Betty's own name was also on that handkerchief which was like a breath from the days of old, but she didn't at the moment want to tell Cora all about it. Ten years before, when Betty was just sweet sixteen, and living in the Midwest, there had been the usual private theatricals of a small town. Betty and the others whose names were embroidered on the handkerchief, had given a fine performance of "Robin Hood." The kindly reception Betty had got at that time had been the stepping stone to the rather splendid position she now occupied in the hearts of New York theatergoers.

"It also," thought Betty a trifle wistfully, "was the stepping stone which enabled me to bridge that River of Love and leave it far behind. I wonder how and where Donald is and if he ever thinks of his sweetheart of sixteen who turned away from his love to follow her career?" Betty glanced back into the past for a fleeting moment and was looking into the blue eyes of Donald Crawford—merry, love-lit eyes—eyes that had grown terribly shadowed when Betty firmly bade him good-by. "Something tells me it is best," she had said.

Cora was more than successful in her effort to get the name and address of the girl who had sold the hat originally.

When, at four o'clock that afternoon, Betty Barrow's card was handed on a dainty tray to Mrs. Alfred Dray, that lady wondered what on earth the well-known actress was calling on her for.

But the two girls, when they looked keenly at one another, flew into each other's arms.

"You're not—you can't be that little Bridget Bennett," exclaimed Mrs. Dray, putting Betty off to have a second look at her.

"I'd have known you anywhere Alice," laughed Betty. "I must have changed dreadfully," she added. "Not dreadfully," said Alice, "you're just a dream. It's no wonder the public is mad about you. But tell me, and she dragged Betty down on the big chesterfield beside her, "how did you get my address, and—"

Betty pulled out the big handkerchief from her bag. "My maid found this in a hat she bought."

"Well, of all things," laughed Alice unbelievably. "Do you know—I was going out in a rush one day right after I had my hair shingled and all my hats were oceans too big, of course, and I stuffed in the first thing that came to hand. Can you beat it?" And she punctuated her remark with a great hug which Betty returned.

In the very midst of this great loving party on the chesterfield, a big blue-eyed man stepped on the scene.

Both girls looked up. "Don, you'll never guess who's here! Look! She pulled the now blushing Betty up and Don looked deep into the only eyes he had ever loved. "Oh, Don—you know it's Bridget—I can see it in your face! And she's been right here in New York all this time—she's the famous Betty Barrow!"

It was Don who spoke first. "Yes, I've always known Bridget Bennett was Betty Barrow. I've been night after night to the theater—just to look at her."

"Don Crawford!" cried Betty, finding her voice at last and very near to tears it was, "do you mean to tell me you knew where I was all this time and didn't look me up?"

Alice, because she was filled with human emotions herself and knew real love when she saw it, perhaps because she and her husband had found it slipped swiftly off to arrange with the maid for tea.

"You said good-by to me once," said Don. "I couldn't stand it again, little Bridget—you mean too much to me."

A tear splashed from Betty's eyes and a second later she was swept into Don's arms. "I've never loved anyone but you, Don—ever since the days of old."

BYRD PLANS TO VISIT THE LE BOURGET FIELD

WHERE HE AND COMPANIONS
WOULD HAVE LANDED

HAD RAIN AND FOG NOT HANDICAPPED THEIR PLANE

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, July 5.—Continuing his round of affairs in the French capital, Commander Richard E. Byrd planned to visit Le Bourget field today, where he and his companions would have landed in their plane but for rain and fog. Officers of the 34th regiment of aviation arranged a program to receive the American flier.

With Byrd and Bernt Balchen present, prominent French officials and crowds of Parisians yesterday held ceremonies at the monument of the American volunteers with the French army and at the Washington equestrian monument, the occasion being Independence Day.

Yesterday's tributes contrasted strangely with last year's Independence Day occurrences at the same two monuments. Last year, during the slump of the franc, vandals desecrated the monument of the American volunteers by hammering off the left arm and leg of the figure of the American soldier, while a 5-mile procession of French veterans, gathered from the entire country, marched silently past the equestrian monument as a protest against the United States government's attitude on the debt question.

Paul Doumer, president of the senate, and other French officials praised American courage and scientific advancement during ceremonies yesterday at the Volunteers monument. The monument was covered with flowers. Ceremonies were held up half an hour awaiting the possible arrival of George Noville and Bert Acosta, members of the American crew. But the fliers, who had returned to their hotel long after midnight after sight-seeing in Montmartre, were still asleep and did not appear.

Picnickers and injured three, probably fatally. The dead were Charles Little, 55, his wife, Mary, 50, and two small children. Three other children were removed from the debris unconscious. The car was carried 500 feet by the engine.

James Douglas, 45, was killed when, on a dare, he jumped from a bridge and landed head first in the Monongahela river 110 feet below.

11 DEAD, SCORES HURT AT KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., July 5.—(UP)—Eleven deaths and scores of injuries constituted the Fourth of July toll in the southwest according to reports reaching here today. DAVID McQUILLAN HAS HIS NOSE BROKEN, 3 OTHERS SUSTAIN MINOR INJURIES

With thousands of tourists motoring to the Brainerd Lake Region intent on spending the week-end and Fourth of July holiday here, but one serious accident was recorded.

Reported to have thrown a wheel while driving to Breezy Point Lodge, a holiday outing of five college students from the Twin Cities ended in disaster when the automobile crashed into a tree near the entrance to the grounds, instantly killing Leslie Morrison, 19, son of J. G. Morrison of 1049 Goodrich Avenue, St. Paul, and severely injuring David McQuillan, 332 Osceola Avenue, St. Paul, reported sustaining a broken nose.

Reported bruised and sustaining scratches and contusions were John Ramaley of 215 South Chatsworth Street, St. Paul; Eugene Kelly, 4751 Fremont Avenue South, Minneapolis; Harold Remington, 3344 Irving Avenue South, Minneapolis.

Morrison was a student at Dartmouth college and was spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison. The mother was communicated with at her home. The father is a general freight agent of the Northern Pacific railway now in Montana on inspection.

Kelly is a student at the University of Minnesota. Remington was graduated last year from West High, Minneapolis, and was employed at Jamestown, N. D.

The boys had left the Twin Cities on Friday evening and were spending the holidays at a cottage on Gull Lake, J. H. Grill, 1720 Dupont Avenue South, Minneapolis, is reported aiding to pick up the dead and injured.

John Henrich, Minneapolis, who has a cottage on Gull Lake, is reported to have driven on the road immediately after the accident and to avoid striking those lying in the highway, ran his car near the wreckage and damaged his own car.

The death car, a Pontiac, is owned by young Kelly and people report the boys had tried to have the shimmying front wheels repaired at Pequot.

The coroner, D. E. Whitney, of Brainerd, viewed the scene of the accident, declaring Morrison's death to have been accidental. He certified the cause of death as being from internal injuries and fractured skull, that the automobile had struck a tree while traveling at high speed, throwing the car to the left side of the road and 80 feet from the road.

The boys who survived were taken to the lodge for treatment and doctors from Brainerd and nearby resorts were called. The body of Morrison was taken to Brainerd and there turned over to a St. Paul undertaker on Sunday noon and then taken to St. Paul by automobile.

The Service Motor Co. of Brainerd brought down the wrecked car and found that vandals during the night had stripped it of three tires, speedometer and even the Pontiac name plate. The father of young Kelly, Frank E. Kelly, owner of the Globe Laundry Co., Minneapolis, was in Brainerd to see about the car.

Sunday Accidents

Sunday accidents included these. A car jumped the Trunk Highway No. 19 curve about four miles from Brainerd Sunday afternoon and lost the front wheels. No one was injured.

A car was ditched near 13th and Oak streets, with no one hurt. An alleged drunken driver smashed a coupe in the business section of Brainerd and was jailed.

AUTO MISHAPS DROWNINGS TAKE TOLL OF 8 LIVES

St. Paul, July 5.—(UP)—Although a minimum of fireworks accidents were reported during the holiday period, automobile mishaps and drownings took a toll of eight lives in Minnesota. Scores of minor crashes were reported as motorists took to the highways.

Edward Hanley, 38, Minneapolis, drowned in Lake Minnetonka. Tom Maurey, 17, was drowned in Lake Shetek near Tracy, and Richard Larson, 9, was killed when he fell from the bank into the Cascade river and was carried over a falls.

Automobile accidents were:

Donald P. Whitney, Le Sueur Center, former editor of the Minnesota Daily, student publication of the University of Minnesota.

Lester J. Morrison, St. Paul, student at Dartmouth college.

Mrs. W. R. Skipton, Kasota, when their car was struck by a train injuring three others in the party.

Ted Walsh, New Richmond, Wis. Andrew Jarvala, 38, Ponsford, Minn., who was killed when his automobile crashed into a car parked on the highway near Moorhead, Minn.

WHOLE FAMILY WAS KILLED IN TEXAS TOWN

TEXAS AUTHORITIES ARE SEEKING TO SOLVE THE MYSTERY

THREE NEGROES WHO WORKED FOR FAMILY ARE BEING SOUGHT

Alanreed, Texas, July 5.—(UP)—Seeking to find three negroes who worked at the home of Frank Weatherby near here, local officials were at a loss today to account for the killing of the entire Weatherby family. The bodies of Weatherby, his wife and two children, a girl 6 and a boy 4, were found in the home yesterday.

Nothing had been seen of the Weatherby family for several days and neighbors became alarmed. An investigation was made and the bodies found. Weatherby was lying in one room shot through the head, while the bodies of the others were found under a mattress in an adjoining room. Apparently Mrs. Weatherby and the children had been killed by a blow from a crow-bar found nearby.

The family motor car was missing and officials are seeking the negroes in the hope they may be able to throw some light on the quadruple killing.

ALL KINDS OF TROUBLE COME TO RICHARD GRACE

Barking Sands, Island of Kauai, July 5.—(UP)—Cruiseair, the plane in which Richard Grace hoped to fly from here to the mainland today rested at the hangar here almost a total wreck.

After three unsuccessful attempts to leave the ground, Grace got away yesterday only to be forced to return in a few minutes by a faulty rudder.

Three times previously, Grace suffered punctures as his plane lurked down the runway.

While Grace was delayed here by a broken propeller, fire trouble and weather, Army Officers Malland and Hegenberger completed the long hop to Hawaii from San Francisco.

"BIG SHOW" OF WEST STAGED FOR COOLIDGE

THE 10TH ANNUAL TRI-STATE ROUND-UP OF WEST TODAY

MONTANA, WYOMING AND SOUTH DAKOTA ARE REPRESENTED

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Belle Fourche, S. D., July 5.—Hardy boys and girls of cow country—who choose mad bulls for playmates or rattlesnakes for pets—assembled in the arena here today to stage for President Coolidge the "big show" of the west.

The show is the tenth annual tri-state roundup of Montana, Wyoming and South Dakota and is considered a tame affair unless necks of a steer or two are twisted beyond recognition and the performers nurse injuries for months afterward.

In honor of Mr. Coolidge's presence the show is being made "bigger and better than ever" this year.

It opened yesterday with preliminary events of bull dogging, fancy riding, roping and wild horse racing. Fox Hastings, woman bulldogger, showed her skill in slowly riding the horns of an obstinate steer until, by a dexterous twist of her slender wrists, she nailed his head to dirt. She and Tad Lucas, 24-year-old daring rider who won the national championship the last three years, are the stars of the show.

"Dakota Clyde" Jones, riding master at the summer White House, who is considered the president's entry, came through the first day of elimination and said he was "arin' to go" for the bucking bronchos today.

More than $13,000 in prizes have been offered and because of the president's presence, competition is exceedingly keen.

A special box has been constructed in front of the grand stand near the chutes where steers are run out for America's big gladiatorial combat. Mr. Coolidge will leave the summer White House before noon and come here by special train from Hermosa, leaving here after the show is over for the return trip.

Yesterday he celebrated his 55th birthday with a lawn party for the Terry, Montana, cowboy band, Boy Scouts of Custer, South Dakota, and 5,000 citizens and tourists who called upon him. He heard the band enthusiastically sing special songs for him, including one expressing welcome to "Cal and Your Gai." They shouted lustily that he was the "greatest guy in the world" and that the second greatest "guy" was Cal's Gai Grace.

It was very informal in contrast to presidential receptions in Washington but everyone had a good time and movie men obtained the best pictures they had had since they came out here.

They photographed him cutting his birthday cake and serving it to cowboys and Boy Scouts, and they obtained pictures of Mrs. Coolidge posing her husband with her hand movie machine.

Mr. Coolidge received many gifts, including three cakes, two pairs of caps, boots, spurs, horse and all riding attire.

BERTAUD TO FLY FROM NEW YORK TO ROME, ITALY

Cleveland, July 5.—(UP)—Lloyd W. Bertaud, air mail flier, left Cleveland today for New York to finish preparations for a flight from New York to Rome.

Bertaud's plans were not divulged and his friends here were pledged to secrecy. They gave him a farewell dinner, presided over by Carl D. Egge, superintendent of the eastern division of the air mail, and attended by air mail fliers and their wives.

Bertaud's plane, it is reported, is to be a Fokker monoplane powered by a Jupiter motor, which will have a flying range of 6,300 miles, which will be ample to carry it to Rome.

'SPIDER' HAINES WORLD'S NON-STOP FLAG POLE SITTER

Denver, Colo., July 5.—(UP)—"Spider" Haines was the world's champion non-stop long distance flag pole sitter today by a margin of at least 12 hours and he was still sitting at noon.

At midnight last night, "Spider" tied "Shipwreck" Kelly's record of 12 days and nights. Haines aims to remain aloft 13 days.

CRITICAL PERIOD IS REACHED IN NAVAL PARLEY

DISCUSSION RESUMED ON CRUISER LIMITATIONS TODAY

BRITISH DELEGATION FIRM IN VOICING ITS DEMANDS

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, July 5.—The most critical period of the naval armaments conference was expected to be reached today as the technical commission resumed discussions of cruiser limitations.

The British delegation was insisting on a 7,500 ton limit on cruisers while the American delegation was equally firm that the tonnage must not be reduced below 10,000 tons.

In spite of the difficulties over the question, on which the fate of the conference probably rests, the conference has made considerable progress. The technical commission has already agreed that all vessels under 600 tons shall not be subject to limitation; that destroyers shall be divided into two classes, one of 1,850 tons and the other 1,400 tons; and that the maximum size of submarines shall be 1,800 tons.

Should the commission be able to agree now on the size of cruisers, the conference's principal remaining task would be to fix a ratio for each nation. After thus disposing of the agenda of the conference, it was understood there will be at least a technical discussion of the British demand on capital ships. The discussion, however, was not expected to jeopardize the conference.

LIEUT. CHAMPION BREAKS SEAPLANE ALTITUDE RECORD

Washington, July 5.—(UP)—Lieutenant Carlton C. Champion, Jr., U. S. N., today had broken his seaplane altitude record by nearly a mile.

He flew to an unofficially estimated height of 37,500 feet over the capital yesterday, breaking his own mark of 33,455 feet achieved May 5. The plane used in both cases was a Wright-Apache fighting craft. Champion was up an hour yesterday. He wore goggles with non-freezable lenses.

SHORT STORY WRITER KILLS SELF WITH GAS

New York, July 5.—(UP)—Mrs. Ernestine Vaughn Henrici, short story writer and former resident of Spartanburg, S. C., today succeeded in her third attempt to commit suicide. Her body was found in a rooming house where she had left a gas jet opened.

Previously Mrs. Henrici had attempted suicide by first leaping into the East river and later by shooting herself.

Her husband, Max Henrici, was formerly a local newspaper man and now is believed to be in Pittsburgh.

FORD RELIABILITY TOUR HOPS OFF

Columbus, O., July 5.—(UP)—After spending four hours at Norton field, the 13 airplanes taking part in the Ford reliability tour hopped off for Cincinnati this afternoon.

The first plane left the field at 2 o'clock and others followed at brief intervals.

The 13 planes arrived here today without mishap from Dayton.

CHAS. DONNELLY IN ANNOUNCEMENT MADE AT ST. PAUL

EXECUTIVES OF G. N., N. P. AND S. P. & S. RAILWAYS APPOINTING SAME

PAPERS FORWARDED TO NEW YORK, APPLICATION TO BE MADE WITH I. C. C.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—(UP)—Application for merger of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Spokane, Portland and Seattle railroads will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission Friday, Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific, announced here today.

The announcement followed approval by executives of the three roads at a meeting in Donnelly's offices today. The documents approving the application were signed by Donnelly, W. F. Turner, president of the S. P. S., and officials of the Great Northern railroad.

The papers signed were immediately forwarded to New York and marked the final action before application is made with the I. C. C.

The S. P. & S. road is now owned jointly by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines.

Approximately 75 per cent of the stock of the Northern is now with the depository committee in New York. The committee consists of Arthur Curtiss James, George F. Baker, J. P. Morgan, Louis W. Hill and Howard Elliott.

The stock is to be exchanged at equal value for stock in a corporation to be organized which would lease the Great Northern and Northern Pacific under the stock ownership and lease plan.

BRITISH TROOPS BEING WITHDRAWN FROM CHINA

London, July 5.—(UP)—The Daily Mail's political correspondent reported today that the British government has ordered the immediate withdrawal from China of a brigade of British troops sent there from India. They will leave as soon as a transport is available, returning to stations in India.

The correspondent said the withdrawal of the troops is possible through the augmentation by the United States of its forces in China.

LENOX HOTEL OF DULUTH ROBBED OF $2,000

Duluth, Minn., July 5.—(UP)—The Lenox hotel here was robbed early today of $2,000 by a bandit who forced the clerk to open the safe and cash box.

The clerk was alone in the lobby when the bandit entered. All the cash in the safe and smaller money in the cash drawer was taken.

Search for the bandit was started immediately by police.

CAT'S MEOW SAVES TWO LIVES

Milwaukee, Wis., July 5.—(UP)—The cat's meow saved two lives here today.

A tiny gray kitten awakened Paul Gray and his wife as they slept, while flames swept through their combined store and home. The kitten aroused the couple by "meowing." Their doorway was cut off by smoke and flame, so they smashed a window and jumped from the second story to the ground, taking the kitten with them.

The building was destroyed.

RADIO CRANK WANTED TO SEE PRES. COOLIDGE

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 5.—(UP)—Lloyd Berkshire, 27, of Masontown, wanted someone to help him secure an audience with President Coolidge to discuss an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the radio industry. He was promptly removed to a hospital for observation and was found to be mentally unbalanced.

NORTHERN EDITORS IN SUMMER PLAY

TWICE a year members of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association have a meeting. The winter session is all business and nothing but shop talk is heard. The summer get-together affair is purely an outing and any one talking shop may be summarily executed.

This year newspaper men of 41 northern counties will participate in the nineteenth annual outing of the editorial association July 21 to 24 inclusive, according to A. G. Rutledge of Bemidji, secretary-treasurer.

The opening day, July 21, is to be used by the editors in motoring to the starting point of the tour, Two Harbors. There registration, a smoker and get-together for the men and a reception for the women will close the first day.

The next day the ore docks of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad will be visited, a boat ride on Lake Superior and a visit to Lighthouse point following. In the evening, citizens of Two Harbors will entertain the visitors at a banquet.

Saturday the real sightseeing of the tour will begin, when the drive along the Lake Superior shore will be made to Beaver Bay. Here dinner will be had in the form of a "hot dog banquet" and the tour will be resumed to Grand Marais.

A banquet and entertainment given by Grand Marais townspeople, talks, vocal solos and dancing will close the Saturday trek. Sunday morning, the drive will be made from Grand Marais to Ely, through the Superior National forest. Several stops will be made during the drive through the virgin timber to inspect the famous coves and waterfalls.

At Ely, a reception and dinner will be tendered by the Ely Commercial club. The outing will end there with an afternoon program of speaking and entertainment, following which most of the editors will return to Two Harbors for Sunday night and to their respective homes Monday.

Every town entertaining the editors always gives them a fine outing. We remember when they were entertained at Brainerd and Breezy Point some years ago on which occasion the Chamber of Commerce and the resort fairly outdid themselves in hospitality extended. The Chamber of Commerce staged a fish fry whose succulent taste has not been forgotten.

OUR INDEPENDENCE DAY

THE St. Paul Pioneer Press of July 3 published a novel account of the signing of the Declaration of Independence as written by Walter Lincoln Whittlesey, Assistant Professor of Politics, Princeton University.

The novel assignment of "covering" the Declaration of Independence was entrusted to the professor who did it in the manner and detail of a contemporaneous political event of 1927. Professor Whittlesey's intimate and accurate knowledge of the personages involved imparted to the historical narrative the live dramatic interest of an exclusive news story of the present time.

We have often heard of the colloquial expression of attaching one's "John Hancock" to an instrument. Well, the president of the assembly at Philadelphia, was John Hancock and he was the first to sign with broad script and an extra flourish, and his eyes twinkled as he remarked:

"The King can read that without spectacles."

Benjamin Franklin, as recorded by Mr. Whittlesey, made a number of changes in the draft of Thomas Jefferson. These alterations all tended to give a more definite statement of our separation from Great Britain.

"It was while Congress was cutting his most eloquent and rhetorical, and unnecessary passages that Mr. Jefferson chafed in his seat. Dr. Franklin, it is reported, calmed the nervous author with a story about a hatter who put out a pretentious sign, but, listening to the criticism of one friend after another, he painted out his recommendation of his wares after that until finally there was nothing left but the picture of a hat, and this, as the complacent old Franklin pointed out to his young friend, was adequate to the business."

At the eleventh hour the deadlock over the Declaration was broken by Caesar Rodney of Delaware who rode 80 miles through the rain and mud to record his affirmative vote for the Declaration.

THOUSANDS IN OUR LAKE REGION

As reported in the Minneapolis Journal of Sunday, more than 800,000 motor tourists from 32 states crowded highways in Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas in what highway officials termed the biggest tourist movement ever recorded in the Northwest for the holiday period of Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Garages, ice cream factories, restaurants, drug stores, hotels in general were taxed to capacity to supply the demands of the hordes.

At tourist information bureaus in the Twin Cities, Brainerd, Winona, Duluth, Park Rapids, Mankato, La Crosse, Wis., Brookings, Mitchell and Pierre, S. D., at Fargo, Minot and Bismarck, N. D., all were unanimous in the declaration that the last seven days had witnessed the greatest invasion of tourists from eastern and southern states in the history of the bureaus.

The Ten Thousand Lakes Association of Minnesota announced that at the rate tourists were registering at official bureaus in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth that the present month would witness the greatest motor tourist invasion in the history of the state.

Brainerd Chamber of Commerce sign below Elk River, erected by a special committee of the Chamber, called attention to the cement paving all the way to Brainerd and the number of resorts in our vicinity and served its purpose well.

BOOKLET TELLS OF STATE'S MANY RESORTS

"RECREATION DAYS", the most complete booklet ever compiled on Minnesota's communities and playgrounds, is now being distributed by the Ten Thousand Lakes association.

Information is given concerning nearly every community in the state having a population of 500 or more, and even smaller ones are described if they are resort centers, Secretary H. C. Hotelling has stated.

"Information is given concerning state parks, golf, courses, hotels, resorts, places of historic interest, hunting and fishing laws, state traffic regulations, tourist camps, railroad excursions as well as transcontinental mileages from important cities throughout the United States, and a complete road log covering the 7,000 miles of state trunk highway," Mr. Hotelling said.

"In its treatment of the playgrounds of the state the new booklet lists all of the communities alphabetically. Lists of all the resorts are given with their accommodations and rates."

Brainerd is given prominence with the numerous resorts adjacent.

FULLY 150 correspondents from throughout the United States are expected to cover the national amateur golf tournament at Minikahda late in August. Reservations already have been received by the United States Golf association from 19 correspondents.

Use Fish as Illuminant

The candle fish is still being used by the Indians in some parts of British Columbia for illuminating purposes. After catching the candle fish, the Indians place them in a dry, sheltered place and wait till they have shrunk and all the water has evaporated from them. They then set the head or tail of the fish alight and use the carcass as they would a torch. There is so much oil in the carcass that it produces a bright, steady flame which burns slowly.

Writings in Blank Verse

Blank verse is unrhymed verse, depending on meter alone. The earliest example of blank verse in England is a translation from Latin of Virgil's masterpiece, "Aeneid," which appeared in 1547. Milton's great poem, "Paradise Lost," is written in blank verse.

American Athletes

Are Too Intensive

"Your fellows go at their games much more intensely than we do," remarks an English athletic star attending an American track meet. "Perhaps that accounts for the fact that so many of your American college stars 'burn out' after brief competitive careers. They put all they have into three or four years of keen action. In England we take track and field sports less seriously; we do not train so sharply, either. One of my leading rivals in the hurdles, for instance, is a man thirty-two years of age, getting better at an age when nearly all of your Americans have retired from competition."

BATS TOO LARGE,
N. ALTROCK QUITCouldn't Get the Ball Past
the Heavy Hitters.

"It may not always pay to be too serious in sport," says Billy Evans. "Take the case of our old friend Nick Altrock, for instance."

"Back in 1906, Smiling Nick, rated one of the very best southpaws in the majors, received in the neighborhood of $4,000 for his services. Today, Nick Altrock, as a member of the team of baseball comedians of Altrock and Schneit, receives much in excess of that amount."

"When Altrock's arm went back on him, he turned from the serious profession of winning ball games as a pitcher to clowning, and got away with it. Fortunately in possessing a keen sense of humor, Nick was even able to get a laugh out of his passing from the game as an active player.

"Like most big leaguers, Nick took a whirl at the minors, before he was willing to admit that he was through. Taking a berth with a club in the American association, he pitched with varying success."

"The manager of the club, fond of Nick, tried his best to have him reconsider his decision to retire."

"If you can give me one good reason for quitting, I will accept your resignation," he told Altrock.

"That's easy," replied Nick. "The bats are simply too big. I can't throw that little ball past them."

"The resignation was accepted."

McGraw Changed Batting
Style of Eddie Farrell

McGraw changed Eddie Farrell's hitting style at the training camp at Sarasota, Fla., this spring and made a real hitter out of the little shortstop. While Farrell was considered a brilliant fielder when he came to the Giants from Penn., it was thought that his hitting would prevent him from becoming a big league star.

Last year Farrell's cut at the ball was not free enough to suit McGraw. He was known as a "choke hitter." This spring McGraw taught the shortstop how to hit with a free and easy swing, and now Farrell is one of the batting heroes of the 1927 season.

Big league managers often change the batting styles of recruit players. Wally Pipp was a poor hitter when he first came to the big show as a member of the Detroit Tigers. Jennings changed Pipp's swing and the first baseman quickly developed into one of the best hitters in the American league.

White-Crowned Sparrow

"Next to the meadowlark, no doubt, most people will vote the white-crowned sparrow the most fascinating singer of the Northwest. Often through the darkest night in the Virginia creeper or honeysuckle around the porch he utters his plaintive song—seemingly to say . . . ## References to Angels

There are three well-known phrases in which reference is made to angels. These are: "Tears such as angels weep," "For'st rust in where angels fear to tread," and "Like angel visits, few and far between." The first is from Milton, the second from Alexander Pope and the third from Thomas Campbell.

Famous Bible

The first printed Bible was the Gutenberg Bible, which was also the earliest book of any kind that was printed with movable metal type. It was published in Latin at Mainz in 1452-1456 A. D. by Johannes Gutenberg.

When Johnny Bassler of the Tigers was charged with an error in the game of April 26, it marked the first time a misplay appeared after his name since September 18, 1925. That made a total of 52 games without a blemish, he having gone through all of the 63 games he participated in last season without being charged with a blot.

Albino Rat in London

An albino rat with pink eyes and white skin and hair has been found in London, and its origin is a mystery. One theory is that the rodent may have bred from tame specimens that had escaped. A large number were around Piccadilly circus in the heart of the city. One rat catcher, who captured 100 of them, has given them the name of "Piccadilly Gingers."

CUB RELIEF PITCHER IN HERO ROLE

YOUNG BUSH GETS CREDIT FOR WINNING TWO GAMES
YESTERDAY

GOES INTO 10TH INNING OF FIRST
GAME, IN 2ND INNING IN SECOND GAME

(By United Press)

Yesterday's hero—Guy Bush, Cubs' relief pitcher, who received credit for winning two games yesterday from Cincinnati because he went into one in the tenth inning when the score was tied and held the Reds until the Cubs scored the winning run and then saved the second game by relieving Osborn in the second inning. The scores were 2 to 1 and 6 to 3 in favor of Chicago.

Brillheart deserved to win the first game as he allowed only three hits, but the Cubs couldn't collect on their five safeties until the tenth and Brillheart gave way to a pinch hitter. Cincinnati scored three runs in the first two innings of the second game, the Cubs tying the score in the fourth and winning the contest in the remaining innings.

The winning streak of the Washington Senators was too good to last. It appeared, and the Yanks took them into camp in two games, 12 to 1 and 21 to 1. The only interesting feature of either game was the continued heavy hitting of Lou Gehrig of the Yankees who took advantage of the weakness of Senator pitchers to hit his 27th and 28th home runs, establishing a lead over Babe Ruth. Otherwise the games were just as exciting as the scores indicate.

The Pirates had to win both games yesterday to remain in first place in the National League but they managed to beat the champion Cards, 7-2 and 6-4. The Cards were badly outdistanced in the first, but fought back in the second game. Holm's home run tying the score in the eighth. In the Pittsburgh half of the inning, however, Barnhart knocked in two runs with a double and that proved sufficient to win.

Tommy Thomas and Ted Lyons, stars of the White Sox pitching staff, had a bad day at Cleveland and the Sox dropped both games to the Indians, 2-0 and 6-2. Levens allowed only two hits in the first game and Thomas allowed five hits, three of which were bunched in the sixth or two runs. In the second game, Donnelly started for the Sox and was knocked out of the box in the fifth. Lyons relieved him, only to be hit hard.

It was the Giants' day at the Dodgers' Park. New York had to fight eleven innings for a 4 to 3 victory in the first game, but won, he second easily, 9 to 4, by establishing a three run lead in the early innings. Rogers Hornsby lived up to his reputation in the second game by getting a home run, a double and a single in four times at bat. He went hitless in the first game.

Boston Braves came from behind in the first game to beat the Philadelphia 4 to 1, but Philadelphia was easier in the second as the score of 8 to 2 in favor of the Braves would indicate. Scott and Decatur were the losing pitchers and Greenfield and Robertson were credited with victories.

The Athletics broke loose in the eighth of the first game yesterday and spoiled a tight game by scoring six runs against the Red Sox. The final score was: Philadelphia 10, Boston 2. The Sox came back in the second game, however, and established a six-run lead before the side was put out in the first. The score was 11 to 3.

Detroit and St. Louis also divided a double header, the Browns winning the first 8 to 4 and the Tigers winning the windup, 10 to 8. The Browns' victory in the first game was possible in spite of the fact the team was charged with five errors.

Kansas City, Mo. — Kansas City dropped into a tie with Milwaukee for second place in the American Association as a result of a double 4th of July victory by the Brewers. The scores were 5-4 and 10-5. Milwaukee won the first game in the ninth inning when Young doubled, scoring Gerken. Brief hit a homer in the first game.

Columbus, O.—Toledo used seventeen players to take the first game of a double header from Columbus, 10 to 8, with five pitchers working during the game. The Senators annexed the second contest, 6 to 5, with Kirkham pinch hitting his team to victory in the eighth.

St. Paul—Five homers ran the scores up in a double header between the Saints and Minneapolis, Minneapolis taking the first game 7 to 5 and St. Paul the second 7 to 2. Krueger, Gaston and Roettger made home runs in the first, and Bohne and Roettger connected with two more in the second.

Louisville, Ky.—Koob and Barwell battled through nine innings in the first game between Louisville and Indianapolis, with the former finally emerging the victor, 4 to 3. Louisville also took the second game, 6 to 5, winning in the twelfth inning. Holley, relief pitcher, doubled in the twelfth to win his own game.

TIGER FLOWERS' TACTICS BRING HIM CENSURE

FIGHT WITH ROSENBLUM GOES
TEN ROUNDS, DECLARED DRAW

THIS BOXING MATCH CARRIED MORE SLAPS THAN REAL PUNCHES

Chicago, July 5.—(UP)—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, might have won another bout last night, in the opinion of experts, if he had not insisted on slapping with an open glove in his fight with Maxie Rosenbloom, New York. Flowers had to be contented with a draw. The fight went 10 rounds.

The Georgian lost his title to Mickey Walker last winter largely because he slapped instead of punched, according to Referee Benny Vanger, who made the decision for Walker and afterwards was criticized for it.

Flowers slipped to the floor in the sixth round but he lost his footing more because of wet canvas caused by rain than Rosenbloom's punch. The New Yorker was slapping almost as much as Flowers and neither did the other much damage.

I. O. O. F. PREPARE FOR BIG OUTING

More Definite Plans Laid at Jericho Outing Association Meeting Held in Brainerd

HUGE PICNIC JULY 24

One of the Largest in History of Association is to be Held at Lum Park in This City

Preparations for one of the biggest outing and picnic days ever staged in northern Minnesota are well under way as manifested at a regular meeting of the Jericho Outing Association of the I. O. O. F. held at Brainerd, Thursday evening, June 30th.

The outing will be held on Sunday, July 24th at Lum Park, Brainerd, this date being selected by the association this spring. This year sees the third annual outing of the association, which comprises practically all lodges in this district, and this outing promises well to surpass anything yet attempted along this line.

The entire day will be taken up by entertainment, the principal feature of the forenoon being addresses by the Grand Master and Grand Secretary of the order as well as other notables of the order who have been invited and are expected to respond favorably. In addition to this there is an elaborate program of water and other sports such as racing, horse shoe pitching, kitten ball games, various exhibitions and so forth to attract the crowd, which it is expected will number around five thousand people.

A big picnic dinner on the grounds together with several concessions have been arranged for and at three o'clock the center of interest will be a big ball game featuring the fast Brainerd Odd Fellows team and the St. Paul Odd Fellows, one of the fastest of Twin City amateur teams.

The association has undergone considerable expense in landing this feature as well as securing the Brainerd Boy's band, a very fine musical organization of high reputation. The band will be on hand throughout the entire day at practically all events and there should be no lack of good music with this band of some fifty pieces.

Good entertainment promises a well-filled evening, one of the best numbers being a diving exhibition of difficult and fancy aquatic gymnastics by "Dixie" Thompson, a former champion in this line. Assured of an evening's entertainment as well as a full day of merriment, the Odd Fellows and those who choose to celebrate with them, will ever cherish a memory of this gala occasion.

In case of threatening weather shelter is well provided on these big picnic grounds, the principal building being one of the largest dance pavilions in this section of the state. With these conditions provided for, as well as provisions for safety and comfort, the success of this third annual I. O. O. F. Outing on July 24th is positively assured.

3-DAYS' HOLIDAY TOLL OF DEAD AND INJURED

injured over the Fourth in the Philadelphia district.

Baltimore, Md., July 5.—The Baltimore section's holiday toll was five killed and at least 25 injured.

Fifteen were injured by fireworks here. Horses and mules were led from a barn fired by a "giant crackler."

Elmer Higgs, 38, salesman, celebrated the Fourth by fatally diving three stories to the ground from the Peninsula Hotel at Salisbury. Once before he had tried suicide on an Independence day.

Columbus, O., July 5.—Ohio observed one of the sanest of its Fourth of Julys, according to reports today.

Traffic accidents, drownings and deaths due to holiday celebrations over the three-day period took a total of 12 lives. None of the deaths was directly traceable to fireworks.

(By United Press)
More than 200 persons lost their lives in the nation's three-day celebration of the 51st anniversary of its independence, reports to the United Press from every section of the country showed today.

Literally hundreds were injured. The celebration assumed the proportions of a major disaster, similar to the toll exacted by devastating floods and hurricanes, as reports continued coming in.

With some sections still to report, the death list stood at 274 at 10 A. M.

The majority of the deaths were due to automobile accidents as people everywhere swarmed on crowded roads for holiday outings. Drownings accounted for scores more. Deaths from firecrackers, pistols and explosives used in celebration were smaller, due to the universal appeal for a "safe and sane" Fourth, but a surprisingly large number lost their lives, while hundreds were burned or mutilated.

The greatest toll was taken in the

OUTLINES HIS WOES IN STYLE OF DAVID

English Clergyman Tells of Tribulations.

To write a modern parody of the Psalms of David has been often tried, but seldom with much success beyond achieving an occasional smart phrase without real application or point. Undeterred by the previous failures of others, however, a much perturbed London clergyman has sought this vehicle for the easing of the woes that beset his soul, and by the judicious use of solemn language diluted with a liberal allowance of up-to-the-minute slang, he has accomplished something that may, perhaps, be regarded as worth while. Thus, complaining of those who resent his air of solemnity, he writes as follows:

"Be he grave or serious in his demeanor; seeking to uphold the dignity of his cloth.

"He is said to be standstill, 'pl.' and upish; yea, the ungodly call him 'Holy Joe.'"

Similarly, he finds that, if he tries to be gay, greeting all and sundry with a merry jest, there are many whom he displeases, so that, in respect of his demeanor, he is very like the old man in the fable of "The Old Man and His Ass," who, trying to please everybody, ended up by pleasing nobody and lost his ass into the bargain. This good clergyman has his problems also with young men and maidens, for if he holds aloof from them they dislike him much:

"So that when to him they should turn as to a friend in need, with them he cutteth no ice."

It is, however, when he seeks to interfere with the widespread habit of tipping that he gets into really hot water:

"Again, if beholding overmuch intemperance in his flock: he exhorteth all men to abstain from strong drink."

"He is said to be a killjoy and inhuman: a very Stiggins whose mind is straightened."

"But if he entereth a tavern and putteth his foot upon the rail of brass: there be those who say, 'Behold a wine-bibber.'"

"So when he bloweth froth, he committeth iniquity: and when he bloweth it not, he is like a sinner."

The conclusion to which the parson comes, surrounded by perplexities so dire, is doubtless the best thing in his Twentieth-century psalm:

"Let the servant therefore walk in the steps of his Master: and care naught for the opinion of men."

It is an undoubtedly wise decision and has the added merit of possessing a far-reaching application.

"Hand Shague" Common

"Hand shague," which caused President Coolidge to carry his hand in a bandage as a result of too much handshaking, is a very troublesome complaint, according to medical men. It belongs to the family of writers' cramp and tennis knee and other complaints that can be traced to a definite pursuit. Many persons in public life have suffered from it. Only the other day Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the British premier, suffered an attack of it after shaking hands with 600 women at a political meeting. The prince of Wales suffered from it badly on each of his tours to distant parts of the empire. Lloyd George and the earl of Oxford and Asquith have both been laid up with it. And Bernard Shaw has been heard to declare that he will never risk it again.

The Unkindest Cut

After months of careful nurturing, the fledgling mustache was just beginning to be noticeable on the lip of its proud young possessor, who walked manfully into the barber shop and demanded a shave. The hot towels were soothing and he half napped as the conscientious barber scraped off fuzz and lather with practiced strokes. The process completed, the youth roused himself and glanced into the mirror at his clean-shaven face. Consternation flushed beneath the talcum.

"Where is my mustache?" he exclaimed.

"I haven't seen it," replied the puzzled barber.

Ever Since the Days of Old

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

BETTY BARROW'S maid came in with the cup of steaming cocoa with whipped cream which she always had before going down for her evening performance at the theater.

"Oh, Miss Betty, just you look what I done find in this hat I bought me this afternoon." And the faithful Cora displayed a large linen handkerchief with signatures of every description embroidered on it. "It was tucked in the brim of that there hat and I couldn't get my head in nohow."

"Cora, perhaps we're on the edge of romance," cried Betty and examined the handkerchief. "Why, this is one of those old handkerchiefs we all had about ten years ago. I had one myself. We used to get all our friends to write their names on them and then embroder over them. Oh!" Betty bobbed up from her comfortable position in so great a hurry as to jeopardize the whipped cream and cocoa.

"Cora! Can you believe it? Here's the name of my best girl friend in those days—look—Alice Moore—I never heard of anything so exciting. Where did you get this hat? I shall try to trace Alice and see how the world has treated her."

"I got that there hat down at a second-hand store in Seventh avenue," said Cora. "and I paid one dollar for it."

"Well, you hop right along and offer him another dollar if he will find you the name and address of the girl who sold him this hat."

As a matter of fact, Betty's own name was also on that handkerchief which was like a breath from the days of old, but she didn't at the moment want to tell Cora all about it. Ten years before, when Betty was just sweet sixteen, and living in the Midwest, there had been the usual private theatricals of a small town. Betty and the others whose names were embrodered on the handkerchief, had given a fine performance of "Robin Hood." The kindly reception Betty had got at that time had been the stepping stone to the rather splendid position she now occupied in the hearts of New York theatergoers.

"It also," thought Betty a trifle wistfully, "was the stepping stone which enabled me to bridge that River of Love and leave it far behind. I wonder how and where Donald is, and if he ever thinks of his sweetheart of sixteen who turned away from his love to follow her career?" Betty glanced back into the past for a fleeting moment and was looking into the blue eyes of Donald Crawford—merry, loved-it eyes—eyes that had grown terribly shadowed when Betty firmly bade him good-by. "Something tells me it is best," she had said.

Cora was more than successful in her effort to get the name and address of the girl who had sold the hat originally.

When, at four o'clock that afternoon, Betty Barrow's card was handed on a dainty tray to Mrs. Alfred Dray, that lady wondered what on earth the well-known actress was enquiring on her for.

But the two girls, when they looked keenly at one another, flew into each other's arms.

"You're not—you can't be that little Bridget Bennett," exclaimed Mrs. Dray, putting Betty off to have a second look at her.

"I'd have known you anywhere Alice," laughed Betty. "I must have changed dreadfully," she added.

"Not dreadfully," said Alice, "you're just a dream. It's no wonder the public is mad about you. But tell me," and she dragged Betty down on the big chesterfield beside her, "how did you get my address, and—"

Betty pulled out the big handkerchief from her bag. "My maid found this in a hat she bought."

"Well, of all things," laughed Alice unbelievably. "Do you know—I was going out in a rush one day right after I had my hair shingled and all my hats were oceans too big, of course, and I stuffed in the first thing that came to hand. Can you beat it?" And she punctuated her remark with a great hug which Betty returned.

In the very midst of this great love party on the chesterfield, a big blue-eyed man stepped on the scene.

Both girls looked up.

"Don, you'll never guess who's here look!" She pulled the now blushing Betty up and Don looked deep into the only eyes he had ever loved. "Oh, Don—you know it's Bridget—I can see it in your face! And she's been right here in New York all this time—she's the famous Betty Barrow!"

It was Don who spoke first. "Yes I've always known Bridget Bennett was Betty Barrow. I've been night after night to the theater—just to look at her."

"Don Crawford!" cried Betty, finding her voice at last and very near to tears it was, "do you mean to tell me you knew where I was all this time and didn't look me up!"

Alice, because she was filled with human emotions herself and knew real love when she saw it, perhaps because she and her husband had found it slipped swiftly off to arrange with the maid for tea.

"You said good-by to me once," said Don. "I couldn't stand it again, little Bridget—you mean too much to me."

A tear splashed from Betty's eyes and a second later she was swept into Don's arms. "I've never loved anyone but you, Don—ever since the days of old."

Healthy Play Tends

to Check Morbidity

A New York physician, commenting on the perhaps unusual number of suicides that have occurred lately among boys and girls of high school and college age, says that his study of the subject has disclosed the fact that not one of the suicides was that of an athlete. His conclusion is that athletics makes for a condition of bodily health and of nervous equilibrium that preserves a boy or girl from the self-examination and worry that are so likely to break down the morale of the mind.

It is probable enough that this is so. The old Romans knew what they were talking about when they prayed for a sound mind in a sound body. Plenty of lively exercise in the open air, cheerful association with others in the friendly competition of sport, regularly recurring periods when you are taken out of your preoccupation with yourself, your doubts and your problems by the necessity of exercising violently your muscles and your will, all help to keep youth normal and contented. By such means the blood is urged to a healthy circulation, and the clouds and vapors that settle on a solitary and introspective mind are cleared away. We agree with the New York physician that tennis, golf, baseball, track sports, hockey, football are all of them useful ministers to the mind that has any tendency to morbidity. If your son or daughter is genuinely devoted to any of these games you need not have much fear that the idea of self-destruction will ever occur to that son or daughter.

Still more effective, of course, is genuine religious faith. The young people who brood themselves into despair are those who have no conviction of the sacredness of life and no assurance of purpose in this world or of hope for the next. "Happiness" is their only goal, and when they find that life inevitably brings responsibilities, disappointments, griefs and disillusionments, they become panic-stricken and look for the quickest way out. Youth needs the firm support of faith as much as maturity or old age—more, perhaps, since it has not yet worked out its own philosophy of experience. If parents will see that children are encouraged in the healthful exercise of their bodies and grounded in a strong and reasonable conviction of the meaning of life as a preparation for the existence that lies beyond, the newspapers will have no youthful suicides to talk about.—Youth's Companion.

Blood Has Its Tides

In the blood stream, pumped from the heart to give us life, there are daily tides like the ebb and flow of the tides of the sea. Dr. A. F. Bernard Shaw of Newcastle, England, recently made this discovery while studying the white corpuscles of the blood. These white cells, whose duty it is to fight disease germs which enter the blood, are known to vary in numbers from time to time. Doctor Shaw found that the number increases and decreases in two regular daily waves.

The high tide of white corpuscles usually comes just after midnight and again in the afternoon. Doctor Shaw suggests that these tides may bear some relation to the hours of eating and sleeping, or may be due to changing positions of sun and earth.—Popular Science Monthly.

Ancient Deben Rings

For many years students of ancient Egypt have asked, What is a deban ring?

Often they encountered the word in their studies, but they were never sure what sort of ring it was. Now, in the opening of the tomb of Queen Hetepheres at Gizeh, men have found a box inscribed: "The mother of the king of Upper and Lower Egypt, Hetepheres; box containing deban rings."

It is easy to imagine the eagerness with which the excavators awaited the opening of the box which would solve the mystery of that long-lost word. Soon the meaning of "deban" was made clear, for inside the box were found two sets of ten anklets, inlaid with dragon flies of lapis lazuli, red cornelian and malachite.

Clock Without a Dial

Lullington church, Burton-on-Trent, England, contains a public clock with neither face nor hands. By striking the hours on the church bells it has given the parishioners accurate time for nearly four centuries.

Built in the Sixteenth century by the village blacksmith, it comprises two heavy stones, a rope 80 feet long and a crude escapement. It is wound daily by the sexton. The winding barrels are of oak, like the beams in which the iron bearings work.

A Burton clockmaker declares that there is no reason why the clock should not continue working for centuries.

"A Million-Dollar Smile"

We have heard the remark made before now: "That man's smile is worth a fortune to him." We have not seen many business men of whom we could say that. However, there is one young lady we know of whom we can say "Her smile is worth a million." It is not a cultivated smile, either, but is natural and spontaneous. It does not matter whether it is the "old man" or his son, the elderly woman or her daughter, rich or poor, white or colored, she always greets them with a cheery, sunny smile. We always feel better for having met her.—Bunceton Eagle.

Expect the Best of People

By CORONA REMINGTON

(Copyright.)

AS BOB WELLINGTON looked at Constance Breckenridge sitting beside him in the car a little shiver of delight passed over him, but this was immediately followed by a sense of depression and despair. All golden and flowing she seemed in her little russet sports suit that brought out the high lights in her dancing eyes and even accentuated the saucy little freckles sprinkled across the bridge of her nose. He liked those freckles immensely, he wanted to kiss them, but hesitated because the feeling of despair had followed the shiver of delight and he considered himself unworthy to kiss even one little freckle.

"What you thinking about?" she asked, looking quickly up at the big man at her side.

"Just that you somehow blend in with the radiant autumn colors around us. See that big oak tree ahead?"

"Fib!" she interrupted, laughing. "That wouldn't make you look so solemn. You looked almost miserable; I decided maybe you weren't enjoying the company."

"Well, Conny, I was thinking and have been thinking for the past six months that I'd love to—kiss one of those little freckles of yours, but I have no right to—I'm such a failure in life." The words seemed wrenched out of him and he looked away as he finished.

"Failure, Bob?" She put a sympathetic hand on his arm. "What makes you say that?"

"Well, you know I've lost both positions I've had since I finished college and dad says I'm no account, not steady, yet in neither case was it actually my fault. Last time the elevator boy forgot to call me in the morning and when I walked in at ten o'clock old Etheridge fired me without waiting for an explanation or anything. And the first time I sassed the boss. He had the wrong idea about doing the thing and I told him so and I was right, the whole office knew it, but of course I had no business showing up his ignorance that way and before his employees, too, so I walked out before he had a chance to tell me to get out. Dad's been terribly down on me ever since, says he spent thousands putting me through college and that I'd have been better off as a messenger boy for the telegraph company. . . . I guess he's right."

Conny laughed at him, a gay rippling little laugh.

"Crazy?" she chided aloud while inwardly she grinned: "I'd like to choke his old skeezicks of a father! Now, how about the next position?" she continued.

"There's a wonderful opening with the Hydraulic Power people in Saginac, but it hardly seems worth while for me to go after it."

"Bob Wellington, you are crazy after all! You've had the best training in your line that money can buy. You're intelligent and have a pleasing presence. You will go after it, too, and you'll get it. Talk them into it and try to sign up for a year, then see if your father doesn't change his mind about you. Why shouldn't you have it? You talk as if you were some little tadpole at the bottom of a pond instead of a great big wonderful man. . . . Now, when are you going to Saginac, tonight?"

"If—I should get it, will you—marry me, Conny?"

"I'll marry you whether you get it or not—because I know you're going to get it!" she ended. "And if you don't mind stopping a minute—" looking shyly down at her hands, "my freckles are—lonesome."

"You're the best little sport that ever lived," he said a few minutes later after the freckles had been comforted. "And I know now that I'm going to succeed. I never had so much self-confidence in my life before. I've got to go through with it now. I will."

Starry-eyed and radiant Conny saw him off at the train that night and the next day she spent in wretched anxiety while she waited for news. He would get there next morning and would probably go straight to the Hydraulic Power people, say about nine or ten o'clock. By noon she should hear, but she did not. Not a word and he had promised to wire immediately after the interview. All the afternoon she stayed home waiting for news. Every time the door bell rang or the telephone she would jump and run to it, but it was always something else, and it was late that night when the message finally came. Frantically she ripped open the yellow envelope and read the lines:

"Failed. What shall I do? Love Bob."

Conny swallowed a lump in her throat, dashed away the burning tears and rushed out the door and called the messenger back.

"Tackle him again tomorrow," she wired. "Make him give you a trial. I know you can get it in the end. Love always. Conny."

Two long days and longer nights then:

"Victory. Will be home in the morning. You certainly did it. All my love. Bob."

"I knew it," exclaimed Conny ecstatically, hugging the envelope to her. "I knew it! Darling old Bob. . . . Expect the best of people and you've fought half their battle for them. His crazy old father had broken his spirit. That's all that was the matter with him."

Daintiest Silks for Formal Wear

Details of Treatment Are Varied; Chiffons, Crepes Are Much in Vogue.

Everyone who saw the early spring collections, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, observed that there was little startlingly different from the fashions presented in the last three years. There was no splash of color, no extreme in design of gowns, but that there was no mere repetition was also very plain. It was as if in the styles shown, no great stride in any direction had been taken for this year, but that a closer attention was being given to detail and the sketches were being filled in. In doing both of these things the designers who offered courageous things last year have given greater importance and distinction to the variants that are now leading in the mode of the hour. In these is a finer quality and more artistic value. The vital point in the latest conception and the aim of every styles creator of authority seems to be to give the long, slim effect in all of this season's models.

This being a silk season, the latest styles are illustrated in every phase of silk fabric for every sort of gown. Evening dress for the summer is of silk in the most delicate weaves, known by up-to-date names, and the distinguishing feature is one of grace. Because of the type of material, evening gowns are most lovely in the lines of their drapery, illustrating the success with which the styles creators have won out for the more feminine type. To quote one of the leading manufacturers of fine dress silks, the sheer stuffs of which evening gowns are made are woven with more weight, so that lines are no longer fluttering, but draped with a clinging quality. The evening gown for this season and the next must hang according to design of the artist, and to do this must have a certain texture to give it body.

This does not mean that the sheer materials are less gossamer-like, less lustrous in appearance, but that they have a certain treatment which makes them more responsive to clever handling and more subtle arrangement.

New Weaves in Crepe.

Such requisites apply to all of the sheer silk fabrics—the various crepes, chiffon, marquisettes, georgette. In crepe are shown several new weaves, some lighter and some heavier than those of last season, the most important for this year's modes being the crepe satin, a shimmering, supple crepe that is almost serpentine in the facility with which it responds to drapery. Something entirely new is a cobwebby silk gauze which has the appearance of fine grenadine and is figured in metal. This is being used by a few of the most exclusive couturiers and will be the high light in the fashion picture for evening dress in the autumn. This metal cloth is an achievement in the art of design and weaving of which costumes of uncommon elegance and distinction are to be made. It is a fairy-like, gossamer thing, exquisite in composition and color, with the pattern in metal threads. There is a suggestion of opulence in the manner of weighting these clouds with gilt and silver in delicate figures, floral and conventional, and they have a pulsing brilliance like the scales of darting fish seen through crystal waters. It is easy to visualize elaborate evening gowns built of these fabrics.

Styles in evening dress for immediate requirements are presented in the new crepes, chiffon and voile, both plain and figured. In plain materials success is a matter of beautiful colors and graceful lines, in both of which charming models have been brought out. In color the kaleidoscope display, with which the early spring season opened, has passed, leaving a few shades conspicuous in their popularity. Green, with several tones blending in one gown; yellow, and all of the luscious fruit and flower shades are still fashionable, but two—beige and blue—are outstanding. These, in many tones and blendings, are most important.

Yellow is used in all shades, and is particularly lovely in thin crepe or chiffon with touches of silver in the trimming. The grades of yellow are known as mals, champagne, mastic, natural, cream, blond, pallie, ecaille, chamois and kashou, which is a deep, rich shade. Many of the new nets and tinted laces which are being used lavishly by some of the best modistes are dyed in these tones of yellow and beige, making softly flattering and most charming frocks for dinner and dancing. Silver is introduced with fantastic effect, in ribbon, braid, pretty crinkle motifs and bows. Flowers are seen less than formerly for evening dress, contrasting with their enduring vogue for daytime decoration. Next to yellow, beige and blue, green is considered fashionable, in some lovely delicate shades for evening, one exceptionally beautiful being named niléen.

Black, black and white, black and pink and the pastel pinks are shown in some of the late Paris models, and the light grays are growing steadily in favor.

Some Use Taffeta and Faille.

Not all of the evening gowns will be made of sheer material this summer, for some creations of style and distinction have been received from important Paris houses emphasizing taffeta and faille of beautiful quality. Jeanne Lanvin has just brought out a new variant of her period gown in black taffeta. Instead of the straight full skirt she has arranged large panniers and has made a bodice of the silk with wide shoulders and a large butterfly bow at the back caught at the waist with a handsome ornament of brilliants. In another model niléen taffeta is used veiled with net of the same shade finely tucked and caught up at one side.

Fringed evening gowns are apparently well thought of by the French couturiers, for almost every one among those representative has tried his hand at this type. In several handsome, evening gowns, the diagonal lines are followed, dropping the hem at one side or in the middle. One of the models seen is likely to endure and be many times copied because of its grace. This is made of just three rows of deep black silk fringe sewn in slanting lines on a foundation of black crepe satin. The bodice is without sleeves.

Sheer Underthings.

Underthings being displayed in the shops are so sheer that it is difficult to believe that they will hold together. Nevertheless, this new underwear fabric is supposed to be stronger than many of the heavier woven silks and to withstand the most trying wear and laundering. It is being brought out by one house in all sorts of garments, including brassieres, bloomers, panties, envelope chemises, nightgowns, step-ins and vests. Individual pieces may be purchased or an entire set.

This fabric is made up in several styles so that various requirements may be met. For those who desire this type of underwear for wear with evening clothes, there are scanty little models trimmed with lovely French lace. Then for those who desire just a suggestion of ornate, there is a wide selection showing gay little designs worked out in colors of forget-me-nots or showing medallion insets of exquisite lace or pettipoint. The strictly tailored mode is adhered to in models that are self-trimmed with finely bound hems, bands and edges. The pastel shades in various tints are much in demand in this type of undergarment, especially in the soft tones of lavender, pink, yellow, rose, green, nude and white.

NORTHERN EDITORS IN SUMMER PLAY

TWICE a year members of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association have a meeting. The winter session is all business and nothing but shop talk is heard. The summer get-together affair is purely an outing and any one talking shop may be summarily executed.

This year newspaper men of 41 northern counties will participate in the nineteenth annual outing of the editorial association July 21 to 24 inclusive, according to A. G. Rutledge of Bemidji, secretary-treasurer.

The opening day, July 21, is to be used by the editors in motoring to the starting point of the tour, Two Harbors. There registration, a smoker and get-together for the men and a reception for the women will close the first day.

The next day the ore docks of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad will be visited, a boat ride on Lake Superior and a visit to Lighthouse point following. In the evening, citizens of Two Harbors will entertain the visitors at a banquet.

Saturday the real sightseeing of the tour will begin, when the drive along the Lake Superior shore will be made to Beaver Bay. Here dinner will be had in the form of a "hot dog banquet" and the tour will be resumed to Grand Marais.

A banquet and entertainment given by Grand Marais townspeople, talks, vocal solos and dancing will close the Saturday trek.

Sunday morning, the drive will be made from Grand Marais to Ely, through the Superior National forest. Several stops will be made during the drive through the virgin timber to inspect the famous coves and waterfalls.

At Ely, a reception and dinner will be tendered by the Ely Commercial club. The outing will end there with an afternoon program of speaking and entertainment, following which most of the editors will return to Two Harbors for Sunday night and to their respective homes Monday.

Every town entertaining the editors always gives them a fine outing. We remember when they were entertained at Brainerd and Breezy Point some years ago on which occasion the Chamber of Commerce and the resort fairly outdid themselves in hospitality extended. The Chamber of Commerce staged a fish fry whose succulent taste has not been forgotten.

OUR INDEPENDENCE DAY

THE St. Paul Pioneer Press of July 3 published a novel account of the signing of the Declaration of Independence as written by Walter Lincoln Whittlesey, Assistant Professor of Politics, Princeton University.

The novel assignment of "covering" the Declaration of Independence was entrusted to the professor who did it in the manner and detail of a contemporaneous political event of 1927. Professor Whittlesey's intimate and accurate knowledge of the personages involved imparted to the historical narrative the live dramatic interest of an exclusive news story of the present time.

We have often heard of the colloquial expression of attaching one's "John Hancock" to an instrument. Well, the president of the assembly at Philadelphia, was John Hancock and he was the first to sign with broad script and an extra flourish, and his eyes twinkled as he remarked:

"The King can read that without spectacles."

Benjamin Franklin, as recorded by Mr. Whittlesey, made a number of changes in the draft of Thomas Jefferson. These alterations all tended to give a more definite statement of our separation from Great Britain.

"It was while Congress was cutting his most eloquent and rhetorical, and unnecessary passages that Mr. Jefferson chafed in his seat. Dr. Franklin, it is reported, calmed the nervous author with a story about a hatter who put out a pretentious sign, but, listening to the criticism of one friend after another, he painted out his recommendation of his wares after that until finally there was nothing left but the picture of a hat, and this, as the complacent old Franklin pointed out to his young friend, was adequate to the business."

At the eleventh hour the deadlock over the Declaration was broken by Caesar Rodney of Delaware who rode 80 miles through the rain and mud to record his affirmative vote for the Declaration.

THOUSANDS IN OUR LAKE REGION

AS reported in the Minneapolis Journal of Sunday, more than 800,000 motor tourists from 32 states crowded highways in Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas in what highway officials termed the biggest tourist movement ever recorded in the Northwest for the holiday period of Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Garages, ice cream factories, restaurants, drug stores, hotels in general were taxed to capacity to supply the demands of the hordes.

At tourist information bureaus in the Twin Cities, Brainerd, Winona, Duluth, Park Rapids, Mankato, La Crosse, Wis., Brookings, Mitchell and Pierre, S. D., at Fargo, Minot and Bismarck, N. D., all were unanimous in the declaration that the last seven days had witnessed the greatest invasion of tourists from eastern and southern states in the history of the bureaus.

The Ten Thousand Lakes Association of Minnesota announced that at the rate tourists were registering at official bureaus in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth that the present month would witness the greatest motor tourist invasion in the history of the state.

Brainerd Chamber of Commerce sign below Elk River, erected by a special committee of the Chamber, called attention to the cement paving all the way to Brainerd and the number of resorts in our vicinity and served its purpose well.

BOOKLET TELLS OF STATE'S MANY RESORTS

"RECREATION DAYS", the most complete booklet ever compiled on Minnesota's communities and playgrounds, is now being distributed by the Ten Thousand Lakes association.

Information is given concerning nearly every community in the state having a population of 500 or more, and even smaller ones are described if they are resort centers, Secretary H. C. Hotelling has stated.

"Information is given concerning state parks, golf courses, hotels, resorts, places of historic interest, hunting and fishing laws, state traffic regulations, tourist camps, railroad excursions as well as transcontinental mileages from important cities throughout the United States, and a complete road log covering the 7,000 miles of state trunk highway," Mr. Hotelling said.

"In its treatment of the playgrounds of the state the new booklet lists all of the communities alphabetically. Lists of all the resorts are given with their accommodations and rates."

Brainerd is given prominence with the numerous resorts adjacent.

FULLY 150 correspondents from throughout the United States are expected to cover the national amateur golf tournament at Minikahda late in August. Reservations already have been received by the United States Golf association from 19 correspondents.

Use Fish as Illuminant

The candle fish is still being used by the Indians in some parts of British Columbia for illuminating purposes. After catching the candle fish, the Indians place them in a dry, sheltered place and wait till they have shrunk and all the water has evaporated from them. They then set the head or tail of the fish alight and use the carcass as they would a torch. There is so much oil in the carcass that it produces a bright, steady flame which burns slowly.

Writings in Blank Verse

Blank verse is unrhymed verse, depending on meter alone. The earliest example of blank verse in England is a translation from Latin of Virgil's masterpiece, "Aeneid," which appeared in 1547. Milton's great poem, "Paradise Lost," is written in blank verse.

MICKIE SAYS—

GOODY! HERE'S A LITTLE TRICK! THEN WILL CREEP IN, NO MISTAKE! HOW CAREFUL WE ARE! BUT THEN, CONSIDERING HOW MANY THINGS WE GOTTA SEE TO IN WATCH, IT'S A WONDER WE DON'T MAKE MORE! I'LL SAY SO!

American Athletes

Are Too Intensive

"Your fellows go at their games much more intensely than we do," remarks an English athletic star attending an American track meet. "Perhaps that accounts for the fact that so many of your American college stars 'burn out' after brief competitive careers. They put all they have into three or four years of keen action. In England we take track and field sports less seriously; we do not train so sharply, either. One of my leading rivals in the hurdles, for instance, is a man thirty-two years of age, getting better at an age when nearly all of your Americans have retired from competition."

BATS TOO LARGE, N. ALTROCK QUIT

Couldn't Get the Ball Past the Heavy Hitters.

"It may not always pay to be too serious in sport," says Billy Evans. "Take the case of our old friend Nick Altrock, for instance. 'Back in 1906, Snelling Nick, rated one of the very best southpaws in the majors, received in the neighborhood of $4,000 for his services. Today, Nick Altrock, as a member of the team of baseball comedians of Altrock and Schacht, receives much in excess of that amount."

"When Altrock's arm went back on him, he turned from the serious profession of winning ball games as a pitcher to clowning, and got away with it. Fortunately in possessing a keen sense of humor, Nick was even able to get a laugh out of his passing from the game as an active player.

"Like most big leaguers, Nick took a whirl at the minors, before he was willing to admit that he was through. Taking a berth with a club in the American association, he pitched with varying success.

"The manager of the club, fond of Nick, tried his best to have him reconsider his decision to retire.

"If you can give me one good reason for quitting, I will accept your resignation," he told Altrock.

"That's easy," replied Nick. "The bats are simply too big. I can't throw that little ball past them."

"The resignation was accepted."

McGraw Changed Batting Style of Eddie Farrell

McGraw changed Eddie Farrell's hitting style at the training camp at Sarasota, Fla., this spring and made a real hitter out of the little shortstop. While Farrell was considered a brilliant fielder when he came to the Giants from Penn., it was thought that his hitting would prevent him from becoming a big league star.

Last year Farrell's cut at the ball was not free enough to suit McGraw. He was known as a "choke hitter." This spring McGraw taught the shortstop how to hit with a free and easy swing, and now Farrell is one of the batting heroes of the 1927 season.

Big league managers often change the batting styles of recruit players. Wally Pipp was a poor hitter when he first came to the big show as a member of the Detroit Tigers. Jennings changed Pipp's swing and the first baseman quickly developed into one of the best hitters in the American league.

White-Crowned Sparrow

"Next to the meadowlark, no doubt, most people will vote the white-crowned sparrow the most fascinating singer of the Northwest. Often through the darkest night in the Virginia creeper or honeysuckle around the porch he utters his plaintive song—seemingly to say . . . 'Sweet, sweet, listen to me, won't you?'"—William Rogers Lord.

They will use a 225-horse power Eaglerock biplane, with Wright whirlwind motor, having a cruising radius of 110 miles an hour.

References to Angels

There are three well-known phrases in which reference is made to angels. These are: "Tears such as angels weep," "Foot's rush in where angels fear to tread," and "Like angel visits, few and far between." The first is from Milton, the second from Alexander Pope and the third from Thomas Campbell.

Moose More Than Pleased With Huge Turnout at Lum
Park Events

Braierd and the district attracted thousands of holiday seekers over the two and one half day holiday, with undoubtedly the largest crowd in attendance at Lum Park where the local Moose gave a most successful sports day and Fourth of July celebration.

Other localities also attracted their share of the large crowd that poured into the district. The Knights of Columbus outing at Birchdale with sport competitions, dancing, amusement stands was the scene of a big celebration, while the Stark Brothers wild animal circus held at the old paper mill grounds under the auspices of the local American Legion was attended by large crowds throughout the entire day and evening. The day was undoubtedly the greatest Independence Day in the district's history.

Earl Berg, Red Cross life guard gave a very able demonstration of life saving and resuscitation methods at Lum Park.

"Dixie" Thompson's water exhibition was very much appreciated.

The sports at Birchdale were taken part enthusiastically by hundreds. The results follow:

Ladies throwing contest—First, Eleanor Nolan; second, Virginia Bingham.

The dancing last evening was well attended at the pavilion. Lou's band furnished the music. The Braierd Ladies band was in attendance throughout the day.

Officials of the outing include the following—V. P. McNamara, Henry Nolan, B. Torba, C. A. Ryan, F. H. McCaffrey, Frank Straka.

Officials of the Loyal Order of Moose of Braierd expressed themselves as being much pleased with the huge turnout at Lum Park events all day yesterday. In spite of the drop in the temperature the beach was lined with swimmers who took part in the water competitions and exhibitions.

The grounds were filled to capacity with cars and last evening a reasonable estimate placed four thousand in attendance for the fireworks display band concert and dancing. Range towns who celebrated throughout the day sent a large representation to Lum Park to complete the success of the occasion. Hundreds of tourists and thousands of people from all parts of the district swelled the attendance greatly.

Nearly 200 persons were in attendance at the annual picnic of the Swedish Bethany Sunday school, held yesterday at the Charles Peterson farm on White Sand Lake four miles west of Braierd.

Leaving the church early yesterday morning members and friends motored to the picnic grounds where an attractive program of racing, sports and other entertainment had been arranged. Prizes were given to winners of the various events, having been donated by the following: Nash-Finch Co., John Stenberg, Oscar E. Swanson, Fidelity Store, Anderson Mercantile Co., John M. Bye Clothing Co., Elmer L. Dahl and A. O. Anderson. Free ice cream was served at intervals during the day.

In the afternoon the married men carried off the honors in a kittenball game with the single men, winning 15-12, while the boys won from the girls in a second game.

After a day pleasantly spent the affair, which was held under the direction of Oscar E. Swanson, was voted a complete success by those present.

Odd Power of Light Rays

By the use of a newly controlled ray of light, a Washington artist is able to make things invisible, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. At a demonstration a person sitting in a chair was suddenly "dissolved from sight" while the chair remained. According to reports, the late Houdini was to have employed this system in causing an entire audience to disappear. The "magic" of the stunt is based on certain laws of light and vision and emphasized the fact that our eyes are dependent upon light rays for what they see.

nearby vicinity revealed no serious car accidents or any drownings on July 4th. Cooler weather kept many from bathing, and thus reduced accidents.

Near Barrows, some eight miles south of Braierd on Trunk Highway No. 27, the sedan car of W. E. Lindroth, reported address 424 Emerson Avenue North, Minneapolis, was damaged in a rear end collision near two parked cars on the highway. No one was injured.

Motley and Staples people, names unknown, collided on Trunk Highway No. 2 about four miles east of Braierd. One car tried to pass the other, the cars were damaged and no one hurt.

Injuries received by David McQuillan, St. Paul youth, in the automobile crash at Breezy Point, today necessitated his immediate removal to a hospital at St. Paul, his condition being reported worse than yesterday. He was taken on a bed in the baggage car and examined at Braierd by Dr. R. A. Beise.

Dr. Beise reported that the young man received a fractured nose and injuries to his head. He is not believed to be in a serious condition.

Donald P. Whitney of LeSueur Center, one of the editors of The Minnesota Daily and editor of Fawcett's Golf Magazine, met death in an automobile crash on Trunk Highway No. 21, four miles southwest of Montgomery. He had stepped on the running board of the car preparatory to alighting, when his vehicle was struck by another automobile. He died a short time after the accident.

Raymond Davis, Minneapolis, the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith of Braierd, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital with a broken leg when he was struck by a tourist automobile on Oak street yesterday.

Louis Roth, driving a Buick, collided with a Ford occupied by a family of Indians, reported to be from Mille Laes lake at the corner of 8th and Holly streets yesterday afternoon. Both cars were damaged considerably. The Indians received a few minor bruises.

A. M. Hames struck the car of Mrs. A. Ludwig parked on Oak street near the intersection of Sixth street yesterday afternoon, damaging it considerably. Hames was arraigned in municipal court this morning on the charge of driving while intoxicated. He was fined $50 and costs.

A Ford car, owned by Johnny Knutson, being driven by a lady friend, turned over on Highway No. 19 Sunday afternoon when it was struck from the rear by another car.

By MARK H. KNIGHT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Lincoln, Neb., July 5.—Fait Elkins, University of Nebraska Indian athlete, accumulated a total of 7,574.43 points to establish himself as decathlon champion of America at the close of the National A. A. U. track and field meet yesterday.

To do this, Elkins won first place in the broad jump, tied for first in the 100-meter run, placed third in the 100-meter high hurdles, and javelin throw and scored second in the 1,500-meter run. The total point score established a record for the American decathlon title. The former record was held by Harold Osborn, Illinois A. C. who obtained 7,351 points in 1923.

Illinois Athletic club won the relay championships with 13 points, beating the New York Athletic club by two points. Los Angeles was third with 10 and Newark A. C. scored 8 for fourth.

An albino rat with pink eyes and white skin and hair has been found in London, and its origin is a mystery. One theory is that the rodent may have bred from tame specimens that had escaped. ## CUB RELIEF PITCHER IN HERO ROLE

WINNING TWO GAMES
YESTERDAY

GOES INTO 10TH INNING OF FIRST
GAME, IN 2ND INNING IN
SECOND GAME

(By United Press)

Yesterday's hero—Guy Bush, Cubs' relief pitcher, who received credit for winning two games yesterday from Cincinnati because he went into one in the tenth inning when the score was tied and held the Reds until the Cubs scored the winning run and then saved the second game by relieving Osborn in the second inning. The scores were 2 to 1 and 6 to 3 in favor of Chicago.

Brillheart deserved to win the first game as he allowed only three hits, but the Cubs couldn't collect on their five safeties until the tenth and Brillheart gave way to a pinch hitter. Cincinnati scored three runs in the first two innings of the second game, the Cubs tying the score in the fourth and winning the contest in the remaining innings.

The winning streak of the Washington Senators was too good to last, it appeared, and the Yanks took them into camp in two games, 12 to 1 and 21 to 1. The only interesting feature of either game was the continued heavy hitting of Lou Gehrig of the Yankees who took advantage of the weakness of Senator pitchers to hit his 27th and 28th home runs, establishing a lead over Babe Ruth. Otherwise the games were just as exciting as the scores indicate.

The Pirates had to win both games yesterday to remain in first place in the National League but they managed to beat the champion Cards, 7-2 and 6-4. The Cards were badly outdistanced in the first, but fought back in the second game. Holm's home run tying the score in the eighth. In the Pittsburgh half of the inning, however, Barnhart knocked in two runs with a double and that proved sufficient to win.

Tommy Thomas and Ted Lyons, stars of the White Sox pitching staff, had a bad day at Cleveland and the Sox dropped both games to the Indians, 2-0 and 6-2. Levens allowed only two hits in the first game and Thomas allowed five hits, three of which were bunched in the sixth or two runs. In the second game, Donnelly started for the Sox and was knocked out of the box in the fifth. Lyons relieved him, only to be hit hard.

It was the Giants' day at the Dodgers' Park. New York had to fight eleven innings for a 4 to 3 victory in the first game, but won the second easily, 9 to 4, by establishing a three run lead in the early innings. Rogers Hornsby lived up to his reputation in the second game by getting a home run, a double and a single in four times at bat. He went hitless in the first game.

Boston Braves came from behind in the first game to beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 3, but Philadelphia was easier in the second as the score of 8 to 2 in favor of the Braves would indicate. Scott and Decatur were the losing pitchers and Greenfield and Robertson were credited with victories.

The Athletics broke loose in the eighth of the first game yesterday and spoiled a tight game by scoring six runs against the Red Sox. The final score was: Philadelphia 10, Boston 2. The Sox came back in the second game, however, and established a six-run lead before the side was put out in the first. The score was 11 to 3.

Detroit and St. Louis also divided a double header, the Browns winning the first 8 to 4 and the Tigers winning the windup, 10 to 8. The Browns' victory in the first game was possible in spite of the fact the team was charged with five errors.

Kansas City, Mo. — Kansas City dropped into a tie with Milwaukee for second place in the American Association as a result of a double 4th of July victory by the Brewers. The scores were 5-4 and 10-5. Milwaukee won the first game in the ninth inning when Young doubled, scoring Gerken. Brief hit a homer in the first game.

Columbus, O.—Toledo used seventeen players to take the first game of a double header from Columbus, 10 to 8, with five pitchers working during the game. The Senators annexed the second contest, 6 to 5, with Kirkham pinch hitting his team to victory in the eighth.

St. Paul—Five homers ran the scores up in a double header between the Saints and Minneapolis, Minneapolis taking the first game 7 to 5 and St. Paul the second 7 to 2. Krueger, Gaston and Roettger made home runs in the first, and Bohne and Roettger connected with two more in the second.

Louisville, Ky.—Koob and Barwell battled through nine innings in the first game between Louisville and Indianapolis, with the former finally emerging the victor, 4 to 3. Louisville also took the second game, 6 to 5, winning in the twelfth inning. Holley, relief pitcher, doubled in the twelfth to win his own game.

TIGER FLOWERS' TACTICS BRING HIM CENSURE

FIGHT WITH ROSENBLOOM GOES TEN ROUNDS, DECLARED DRAW

THIS BOXING MATCH CARRIED MORE SLAPS THAN REAL PUNCHES

Chicago, July 5.—(UP)—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, might have won another bout last night, in the opinion of experts, if he had not insisted on slapping with an open glove in his fight with Maxie Rosenbloom, New York. Flowers had to be contented with a draw. The fight went 10 rounds.

The Georgian lost his title to Mickey Walker last winter largely because he slapped instead of punched, according to Referee Benny Yanger, who made the decision for Walker and afterwards was criticized for it.

Flowers slipped to the floor in the sixth round but he lost his footing more because of wet canvas caused by rain than Rosenbloom's punch. The New Yorker was slapping almost as much as Flowers and neither did the other much damage.

Of the Big-House Family

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

WHEN the Allenbys lost all their money and were obliged to leave the Big House, as it was locally called, they were able to occupy a small cottage not far away. When they were comfortably settled there, Ann and her mother—for the father had died before his ill-judged investments had proved to be utterly worthless—were cozy and comfortable enough, though they missed the large ness and space that they had always been accustomed to. The cottage garden was a thing of wonder, for dozens of roots were brought from Big House and their old gardener, Jacob, had made them a wonderful vegetable garden that was surrounded with more flowers!

"Mother, darling, I know we lack the luxury and the motors of Big House," said Ann, one lovely June day, "but aren't you a little bit happy?"

Mrs. Allenby smiled contentedly at her charming daughter. "I am happier, dear, than I have been since I was first married," she admitted. "Your father and I began our married life in this wee house."

"Mother! And you never told me!" exclaimed Ann.

"I wanted you to teach yourself to like the change, without favoring prejudice. You know, of course," said Mrs. Allenby, "that Big House has been sold—a small family, I hear mother and son, they say. He's an electrical engineer. When they are thoroughly settled, I shall, of course call."

Half an hour later, the gate opened and a young man appeared carrying a shining milk pail. Ann liked him at once, because he was big and so clean and thoroughly good looking.

"I came to beg a pail of your spring water, Mrs. Allenby," he said. "We have just arrived at Big House and something has happened to the spring water pump there—at least it is out of commission."

"Why, of course," said hospitable Mrs. Allenby. "My daughter will direct you," and she resumed her novel while Ann with a little nod of assent went out to the spring and joined him in the red brick path.

"Big House is a fine old mansion," observed the young man as they walked along, "but I do miss a few things—such as this old brick path for instance."

"I love them, too," said Ann. "I believe mother forgot to introduce us. I am Ann Allenby."

"And I am Ronald Smith," he laughed. "One of the great Smith clan!" They laughed together as they reached the spring house.

"Then, you are a member of Big House family," offered Ann.

He nodded carelessly. "There is only mother and I—the rest of the family have all married and gone on—even father has taken a trip to South America!"

Ann made some happy response, and went back to the veranda. She went on sewing daintily. Then Mrs. Allenby said abruptly:

"A rather nice looking man—I suppose he is the butler or chauffeur."

Ann gasped, and then a dimple came into her cheek; what a funny joke or mother! she thought.

"Have you ever seen any of the Smiths, mother—of course, I mean the new family next door?"

"No," said Mrs. Allenby, resuming her book.

Every day Ronald Smith appeared with his pail for water. One morning he brought a great armful of yellow roses, that had been Mrs. Allenby's pride and joy at Big House. "Mother sent these to Mrs. Allenby," he said simply, and went on around by the brick walk.

"Mother!" exclaimed Mrs. Allenby. "Never let him know that I thought him the butler!"

"Or the chauffeur!" laughed Ann and then she told her mother what she had learned that first day.

"Then, he must be the electrical engineer," decided Mrs. Allenby. "I wonder," she mused, "why he did not repair their pump after that first day."

"I wonder!" echoed Ann, but there was a pink flush in her cheeks, and a tender look in her eyes, for her meetings with young Smith, though brief had been full of interest. Mrs. Allenby had put aside her plan of summer idleness, and sending for the village taxi cab she paid a state call upon Mrs. Smith, who turned out to be so de lightful a woman of her own social rank, with so many congenial acquaintances who were also friends of Mrs. Allenby's, that a very warm friendship grew rapidly between them.

"Ronnie is just spending the summer with me," explained Mrs. Smith one day.

The two ladies exchanged a smile, for Ronald Smith and Ann had fallen desperately in love with each other, and it was not long before they became engaged.

Then Ronald announced his desire to live with Mrs. Allenby at White Cottage. "Of course, you can have a household—and more, if you wish," he told Ann and her mother one day, "but for my part, I can be both butler and chauffeur, if necessary!"

"Yes, so I have, ma'am," said the tramp. He shoveled about a cubic foot of pie into his mouth with his knife and added: "Once I dwelt in marble halls."

"And how," said the farmer's wife, "did you come to lose such a nice home?"

"Term expired," said the tramp.

Two Federal Agents

Fined for Disorderly Conduct at Winona

Winona, Minn., July 5.—(UP)—George B. Sullivan and Frank J. Sullivan, federal prohibition agents, today were fined $50 each for disorderly conduct in municipal court here today. They were arrested following a brawl in a restaurant here about a week ago.

U. S. District Attorney Wharton appeared for the agents and stated he believed there was no "frameup" connected with the affair.

SEA NOVELS

HAVE MOST STEADY MARKET

London, July 5.—(UP)—Sea novels have as firm and lasting a market as potatoes, Alfred A. Knopf, American publisher, said in an interview here.

Like potatoes, they never will become a real craze because they are a staple product, always present in one form or another, he added.

Healthy Play Tends to Check Morbidity

A New York physician, commenting on the perhaps unusual number of suicides that have occurred lately among boys and girls of high school and college age, says that his study of the subject has disclosed the fact that not one of the suicides was that of an athlete. His conclusion is that athletics makes for a condition of bodily health and of nervous equilibrium that preserves a boy or girl from the self-examination and worry that are so likely to break down the morale of the mind.

It is probable enough that this is so. The old Romans knew what they were talking about when they prayed for a sound mind in a sound body. Plenty of lively exercise in the open air, cheerful association with others in the friendly competition of sport, regularly recurring periods when you are taken out of your preoccupation with yourself, your doubts and your problems by the necessity of exercising violently your muscles and your will, all help to keep youth normal and contented. By such means the blood is urged to a healthy circulation, and the clouds and vapors that settle on a solitary and introspective mind are cleared away. We agree with the New York physician that tennis, golf, baseball, track sports, hockey, football are all of them useful ministers to the mind that has any tendency to morbidity. If your son or daughter is genuinely devoted to any of these games you need not have much fear that the idea of self-destruction will ever occur to that son or daughter.

Still more effective, of course, is genuine religious faith. The young people who brood themselves into despair are those who have no conviction of the sacredness of life and no assurance of purpose in this world or of hope for the next. "Happiness" is their only goal, and when they find that life inevitably brings responsibilities, disappointments, griefs and disillusionments, they become panic-stricken and look for the quickest way out. Youth needs the firm support of faith as much as maturity or old age—more, perhaps, since it has not yet worked out its own philosophy of experience. If parents will see that children are encouraged in the healthful exercise of their bodies and grounded in a strong and reasonable conviction of the meaning of life as a preparation for the existence that lies beyond, the newspapers will have no youthful suicides to talk about.—Youth's Companion.

Blood Has Its Tides

In the blood stream, pumped from the heart to give us life, there are daily tides like the ebb and flow of the tides of the sea. Dr. A. F. Bernard Shaw of Newcastle, England, recently made this discovery while studying the white corpuscles of the blood. These white cells, whose duty it is to fight disease germs which enter the blood, are known to vary in numbers from time to time. Doctor Shaw found that the number increases and decreases in two regular daily waves.

The high tide of white corpuscles usually comes just after midnight and again in the afternoon. Doctor Shaw suggests that these tides may bear some relation to the hours of eating and sleeping, or may be due to changing positions of sun and earth.—Popular Science Monthly.

Ancient Deben Rings

For many years students of ancient Egypt have asked, What is a deban ring?

Often they encountered the word in their studies, but they were never sure what sort of ring it was. Now, in the opening of the tomb of Queen Hetepheres at Gizeh, men have found a box inscribed: "The mother of the king of Upper and Lower Egypt, Hetepheres; box containing deban rings."

It is easy to imagine the eagerness with which the excavators awaited the opening of the box which would solve the mystery of that long-lost word. Soon the meaning of "deban" was made clear, for inside the box were found two sets of ten anklets, inlaid with dragon flies of lapis lazuli, red cornelian and malachite.

Clock Without a Dial

Lullington church, Burton-on-Trent, England, contains a public clock with neither face nor hands. By striking the hours on the church bells it has given the parishioners accurate time for nearly four centuries.

Built in the sixteenth century by the village blacksmith, it comprises two heavy stones, a rope 30 feet long and a crude escapement. It is wound daily by the sexton. The winding barrels are of oak, like the beams in which the iron bearings work.

A Burton clockmaker declares that there is no reason why the clock should not continue working for centuries.

"A Million-Dollar Smile"

We have heard the remark made before now: "That man's smile is worth a fortune to him." We have not seen many business men of whom we could say that. However, there is one young lady we know of whom we can say "Her smile is worth a million." It is not a cultivated smile, either, but is natural and spontaneous. It does not matter whether it is the "old man" or his son, the elderly woman or her daughter, rich or poor, white or colored, she always greets them with a cheery, sunny smile. We always feel better for having met her.—Bunceton Eagle.

Expect the Best of People

By CORONA REMINGTON

(Copyright.)

AS BOB WELLINGTON looked at Constance Breckenridge sitting beside him in the car a little shiver of delight passed over him, but this was immediately followed by a sense of depression and despair. All golden and flowing she seemed in her little russet sports suit that brought out the high lights in her dancing eyes and even accentuated the saucy little freckles sprinkled across the bridge of her nose. He liked those freckles immensely, he wanted to kiss them, but hesitated because the feeling of despair had followed the shiver of delight and he considered himself unworthy to kiss even one little freckle.

"What you thinking about?" she asked, looking quickly up at the big man at her side.

"Just that you somehow blend in with the radiant autumn colors around us. See that big oak tree ahead—"

"Fib!" she interrupted, laughing. "That wouldn't make you look so solemn. You looked almost miserable; I decided maybe you weren't enjoying the company."

"Well, Conny, I was thinking and have been thinking for the past six months that I'd love to—kiss one of those little freckles of yours, but I have no right to—I'm such a failure in life." The words seemed wrenched out of him and he looked away as he finished.

"Failure, Bob?" She put a sympathetic hand on his arm. "What makes you say that?"

"Well, you know I've lost both positions I've had since I finished college and dad says I'm no account, not steady, yet in neither case was it actually my fault. Last time the elevator boy forgot to call me in the morning and when I walked in at ten o'clock old Etheridge fired me without waiting for an explanation or anything. And the first time I sassed the boss. He had the wrong idea about doing the thing and I told him so and I was right, the whole office knew it, but of course I had no business showing up his ignorance that way and before his employees, too, so I walked out before he had a chance to tell me to get out. Dad's been terribly down on me ever since, says he spent thousands putting me through college and that I'd have been better off as a messenger boy for the telegraph company. . . . I guess he's right."

Conny laughed at him, a gay rippling little laugh.

"Crazy!" she chided aloud while inwardly she gritted: "I'd like to choke his old skeezicks of a father! Now, how about the next position?" she continued.

"There's a wonderful opening with the Hydraulic Power people in Saginac, but it hardly seems worth while for me to go after it."

"Bob Wellington, you are crazy after all! You've had the best training in your line that money can buy. You're intelligent and have a pleasing presence. You will go after it, too, and you'll get it. Talk them into it and try to sign up for a year, then see if your father doesn't change his mind about you. Why shouldn't you have it? You talk as if you were some little tadpole at the bottom of a pond instead of a great big wonderful man. . . . Now, when are you going to Saginac, tonight?"

"If—if I should get it, will you—marry me, Conny?"

"I'll marry you whether you get it or not—because I know you're going to get it!" she ended. "And if you don't mind stopping a minute—" looking shyly down at her hands, "my freckles are—lovely."

"You're the best little sport that ever lived," he said a few minutes later after the freckles had been comforted. "And I know now that I'm going to succeed. I never had so much self-confidence in my life before. I've got to go through with it now. I will."

Starry-eyed and radiant Conny saw him off at the train that night and the next day she spent in wretched anxiety while she waited for news. He would get there next morning and would probably go straight to the Hydraulic Power people, say about nine or ten o'clock. By noon she should hear, but she did not. Not a word and he had promised to wire immediately after the interview. All the afternoon she stayed home waiting for news. Every time the door bell rang or the telephone she would jump and run to it, but it was always something else and it was late that night when the message finally came. Frantically she ripped open the yellow envelope and read the lines:

"Failed. What shall I do? Love Bob."

Conny swallowed a lump in her throat, dashed away the burning tears and rushed out the door and called the messenger back.

"Tackle him again tomorrow," she wired. "Make him give you a trial. I know you can get it in the end. Love always, Conny."

Two long days and longer nights then:

"Victory. Will be home in the morning. You certainly did it. All my love, Bob."

"I knew it," exclaimed Conny ecstatically, hugging the envelope to her. "I knew it! Darling old Bob. . . . Expect the best of people and you've fought half their battle for them. His crazy old father had broken his spirit. That's all that was the matter with him."

Model in Flower-Printed Chiffon Made With Voluminous Skirt and the New Low-Dipping Line at the Back. An Extreme Design in the Slim Silhouette of Beige Crepe Roma With Cape and Scarf Drapery of Beige and Silver Lace.

Daintiest Silks for Formal Wear

Details of Treatment Are Varied; Chiffons, Crepes Are Much in Vogue.

Everyone who saw the early spring collections, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, observed that there was little startlingly different from the fashions presented in the last three years. There was no splash of color, no extreme in design of gowns, but that there was no mere repetition was also very plain. It was as if in the styles shown, no great stride in any direction had been taken for this year, but that a closer attention was being given to detail and the sketches were being filled in. In doing both of these things the designers who offered courageous things last year have given greater importance and distinction to the variants that are now leading in the mode of the hour. In these is a finer quality and more artistic value. The vital point in the latest conception and the aim of every styles creator of authority seems to be to give the long, slim effect in all of this season's models.

This being a silk season, the latest styles are illustrated in every phase of silk fabric for every sort of gown. Evening dress for the summer is of silk in the most delicate weaves, known by up-to-date names, and the distinguishing feature is one of grace. Because of the type of material, evening gowns are most lovely in the lines of their drapery, illustrating the success with which the styles creators have won out for the more feminine type. To quote one of the leading manufacturers of fine dress silks, the sheer stuffs of which evening gowns are made are woven with more weight, so that lines are no longer fluttering, but draped with a clinging quality. The evening gown for this season and the next must hang according to design of the artist, and to do this must have a certain texture to give it body.

This does not mean that the sheer materials are less gossamer-like, less lustrous in appearance, but that they have a certain treatment which makes them more responsive to clever handling and more subtle arrangement.

New Weaves in Crepe.

Such requisites apply to all of the sheer silk fabrics—the various crepes, chiffon, marisettes, georgette. In crepe are shown several new weaves, some lighter and some heavier than those of last season, the most important for this year's modes being the crepe satin, a shimmering, supple crepe that is almost serpentine in the facility with which it responds to draping. Something entirely new is a cobwebby silk gauze which has the appearance of fine grenadine and is figured in metal. This is being used by a few of the most exclusive couturiers and will be the high light in the fashion picture for evening dress in the autumn. This metal cloth is an achievement in the art of design and weaving of which costumes of uncommon elegance and distinction are to be made. It is a fairy-like, gossamer thing, exquisite in composition and color, with the pattern in metal threads. There is a suggestion of opulence in the manner of weighting these clouds with gilt and silver in delicate figures, floral and conventional, and they have a pulsing brilliance like the scales of darting fish seen through crystal waters. It is easy to visualize elaborate evening gowns built of these fabrics.

Styles in evening dress for immediate requirements are presented in the new crepes, chiffon and voile, both plain and figured. In plain materials the success is a matter of beautiful colors and graceful lines, in both of which charming models have been brought out. In color the kaleidoscope display, with which the early spring season opened, has passed, leaving a few shades conspicuous in their popularity. Green, with several tones blending in one gown; yellow, and all of the luscious fruit and flower shades are still fashionable, but two—beige and blue—are outstanding. These, in many tones and blendings, are most important.

Yellow is used in all shades, and is particularly lovely in thin crepe or chiffon with touches of silver in the trimming. The grades of yellow are known as mads, champagne, mastic, natural, cream, blond, pallid, ecaille, chamois and kashou, which is a deep, rich shade. Many of the new nets and tinted laces which are being used lavishly by some of the best modistes are dyed in these tones of yellow and beige, making softly flattering and most charming frocks for dinner and dancing. Silver is introduced with fantastic effect, in ribbon, braid, pretty crinkle motifs and bows. Flowers are seen less than formerly for evening dress, contrasting with their enduring vogue for daytime decoration. Next to yellow, beige and blue, green is considered fashionable, in some lovely delicate shades for evening, one exceptionally beautiful being named nileen.

Black, black and white, black and pink and the pastel pinks are shown in some of the late Paris models, and the light grays are growing steadily in favor.

Some Use Taffeta and Faille.

Not all of the evening gowns will be made of sheer material this summer, for some creations of style and distinction have been received from important Paris houses emphasizing taffeta and faille of beautiful quality. Jeanne Lanvin has just brought out a new variant of her period gown in black taffeta. Instead of the straight full skirt she has arranged large panniers and has made a bodice of the silk with wide shoulders and a large butterfly bow at the back caught at the waist with a handsome ornament of brilliants. In another model nileen taffeta is used veiled with net of the same shade finely tucked and caught up at one side.

Fringed evening gowns are apparently well thought of by the French couturiers, for almost every one among those representative has tried his hand at this type. In several handsome, evening gowns, the diagonal lines are followed, dropping the hem at one side or in the middle. One of the models seen is likely to endure and be many times copied because of its grace. This is made of just three rows of deep black silk fringe sewn in slanting lines on a foundation of black crepe satin. The bodice is without sleeves.

Sheer Underthings.

Underthings being displayed in the shops are so sheer that it is difficult to believe that they will hold together. Nevertheless, this new underwear fabric is supposed to be stronger than many of the heavier woven silks and to withstand the most trying wear and laundering. It is being brought out by one house in all sorts of garments, including brassieres, bloomers, panties, envelope chemises, nightgowns, step-ins and vests. Individual pieces may be purchased or an entire set.

This fabric is made up in several styles so that various requirements may be met. For those who desire this type of underwear for wear with evening clothes, there are scanty little models trimmed with lovely French lace. Then for those who desire just a suggestion of ornate, there is a wide selection showing gay little designs worked out in colors of forget-me-nots or showing medallion insets of exquisite lace or pettipoint. The strictly tailored mode is adhered to in models that are self-trimmed with finely bound hems, bands and edges. The pastel shades in various tints are much in demand in this type of undergarment, especially in the soft tones of lavender, pink, yellow, rose, green, nude and white.

THOUSANDS CELEBRATE FOURTH IN DISTRICT

Day Declared Greatest in Local Independence Day History;
Firecrackers Boom

SPORTS FEATURE PROGRAMS

Moose More Than Pleased With Huge Turnout at Lum Park Events

Braierd and the district attracted thousands of holiday seekers over the two and one half day holiday, with undoubtedly the largest crowd in attendance at Lum Park where the local Moose gave a most successful sports day and Fourth of July celebration.

Other localities also attracted their share of the large crowd that poured into the district. The Knights of Columbus outing at Birchdale with sport competitions, dancing, amusement stands was the scene of a big celebration, while the Stark Brothers wild animal circus held at the old paper mill grounds under the auspices of the local American Legion was attended by large crowds throughout the entire day and evening. The day was undoubtedly the greatest Independence Day in the district's history.

Earl Berg, Red Cross life guard gave a very able demonstration of life saving and resuscitation methods at Lum Park.

"Dixie" Thompson's water exhibition was very much appreciated.

Birchdale Events

The sports at Birchdale were taken part enthusiastically by hundreds. The results follow:

Married ladies egg race—First, Mrs. Selen; second, Mrs. Bislar.

Tug of war—Won by the Baxter township men's team.

Three legged race—First, Ernest Johnson and Leonard Adair; second, Owen Woodhouse and Francis Parleosa.

50 yard running race, boys under 16—First, Ernest Hadersheek; second, Henry Hadersheek.

100 yard running race, free for all—First, Verne McNamara; second, R. Olson.

Relay race, four blocks—Won by team headed by Joe McCarville.

Cigar race for men—First, Art Helmer; second, Walter Koop.

50 yard race for girls under 16 years—First, Virginia Bingham; second, Alice Nolan.

50 yard race, girls, 16 to 21—First, Nora Johnson; second, Lucille Holm.

Potato race, boys 12 to 16 years—First, Edward Anderson; second, Owen Woodhouse.

Running broad jump—First, A. Helmer; second, R. Olson; third, Joe McCarville.

75 yard dash for boys over 16 years—First, Verne McNamara; second, Joe Greener.

Ladies throwing contest—First, Eleanor Nolan; second, Virginia Bingham.

The dancing last evening was well attended at the pavilion. Lou's band furnished the music. The Braierd Ladies band was in attendance throughout the day.

Officials of the outing include the following—V. F. McNamara, Henry Nolan, B. Torha, C. A. Ryan, F. H. McCaffrey, Frank Straka.

Officials of the Loyal Order of Moose of Braierd expressed themselves as being much pleased with the huge turnout at the Lum Park events all day yesterday. In spite of the drop in the temperature the beach was lined with swimmers who took part in the water competitions and exhibitions.

The grounds were filled to capacity with cars and last evening a reasonable estimate placed four thousand in attendance for the fireworks display band concert and dancing. Range towns who celebrated throughout the day sent a large representation to Lum Park to complete the success of the occasion. Hundreds of tourists and thousands of people from all parts of the district swelled the attendance greatly.

ON WHITE SAND LAKE

Attractive Program of Racing, Sports, Entertainment Provided

Nearly 200 persons were in attendance at the annual picnic of the Swedish Bethany Sunday school, held yesterday at the Charles Peterson farm on White Sand Lake four miles west of Braierd.

Leaving the church early yesterday morning members and friends motored to the picnic grounds where an attractive program of racing, sports and other entertainment had been arranged. Prizes were given to winners of the various events, having been donated by the following: Nash-Pinch Co., John Stenberg, Oscar E. Swanson, Fidelity Store, Anderson Mercantile Co., John M. Bye Clothing Co., Elmer L. Dahl and A. O. Anderson. Free ice cream was served at intervals during the day.

In the afternoon the married men carried off the honors in a kitenball game with the single men, winning 15-12, while the boys won from the girls in a second game.

After a day pleasantly spent the affair, which was held under the direction of Oscar E. Swanson, was voted a complete success by those present.

Odd Power of Light Rays

By the use of a very controlled ray of light, a Washington artist is able to make things invisible, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. At a demonstration a person sitting in a chair was suddenly "dissolved from sight" while the chair remained. According to reports, the late Houdini was to have employed this system in causing an entire audience to disappear. The "magic" of the stunt is based on certain laws of light and vision and emphasized the fact that our eyes are dependent upon light rays for what they see.

Their Occupation

"What is going on here?" asked a visitor in Petunia. "I have noticed quite a number of young men sneaking around corners, peering into windows, hiding behind ash barrels, measuring places on the ground, remarking 'Hist' and the like."

"Then's graduates of a College of Detection, up to Kay See, and they are trying to detect crime," replied Constable Slackpitter, the well-known sleuth. "But as long as they don't do anything but try to detect, I can't very well arrest 'em."—Kansas City Star.

nearby vicinity revealed no serious car accidents or any drownings on July 4th. Cooler weather kept many from bathing, and thus reduced accidents.

Near Barrows, some eight miles south of Braierd on Trunk Highway No. 27, the sedan car of W. E. Lindroth, reported address 424 Emerson Avenue North, Minneapolis, was damaged in a rear end collision near two parked cars on the highway. No one was injured.

Motley and Staples people, names unknown, collided on Trunk Highway No. 2 about four miles east of Braierd. One car tried to pass the other, the cars were damaged and no one hurt.

Injuries received by David McQuillan, St. Paul youth, in the automobile crash at Breezy Point, today necessitated his immediate removal to a hospital in St. Paul, his condition being reported worse than yesterday. He was taken on a bed in the baggage car and examined at Braierd by Dr. R. A. Belse.

Dr. Belse reported that the young man received a fractured nose and injuries to his head. He is not believed to be in a serious condition.

Donald P. Whitney of LeSueur Center, one of the editors of The Minnesota Daily and editor of Fawcett's Golf Magazine, met death in an automobile crash on Trunk Highway No. 21, four miles southwest of Montgomery. ## Of the Big-House Family

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

WHEN the Allenbys lost all their money and were obliged to leave the Big House, as it was locally called, they were able to occupy a small cottage not far away. When they were comfortably settled there, Ann and her mother—for the father had died before his ill-judged investments had proved to be utterly worthless—were cozy and comfortable enough, though they missed the large house and space that they had always been accustomed to. The cottage garden was a thing of wonder, for dozens of roots were brought from Big House and their old gardener, Jacob, had made them a wonderful vegetable garden that was surrounded with more flowers!

"Mother, darling, I know we lack the luxury and the motors of Big House," said Ann, one lovely June day, "but aren't you a little bit happy?"

Mrs. Allenby smiled contentedly at her charming daughter. "I am happier, dear, than I have been since I was first married," she admitted. "Your father and I began our married life in this wee house."

"Mother! And you never told me!" exclaimed Ann.

"I wanted you to teach yourself to like the change, without favorable prejudice. You know, of course," said Mrs. Allenby, "that Big House has been sold—a small family. I hear mother and son, they say. He's an electrical engineer. When they are thoroughly settled, I shall, of course, call."

Half an hour later, the gate opened and a young man appeared carrying a shining milk pail. Ann liked him at once, because he was big and so clear and thoroughly good looking.

"I came to beg a pail of your spring water, Mrs. Allenby," he said. "We have just arrived at Big House and something has happened to the spring water pump there—at least it is out of commission."

"Why, of course," said hospitable Mrs. Allenby. "My daughter will direct you," and she resumed her novel while Ann with a little nod of assent went out to the spring and joined him on the red brick path.

"Big House is a fine old mansion," observed the young man as they walked along, "but I do miss a few things—such as this old brick path for instance."

"I love them, too," said Ann. "I believe mother forgot to introduce us. I am Ann Allenby."

"And I am Ronald Smith," he laughed. "One of the great Smith clan!" They laughed together as they reached the spring house.

"Then, you are a member of Big House family," offered Ann.

He nodded carelessly. "There is only mother and I—the rest of the family have all married and gone off—even father has taken a trip to South America!"

Ann made some happy response, and went back to the veranda. She went on sewing daintily. Then Mrs. Allenby said abruptly:

"A rather nice looking man—I suppose he is the butler or chauffeur."

Ann gasped, and then a duple came into her cheek; what a funny joke or mother! she thought.

"Have you ever seen any of the Smiths, mother—of course, I mean the new family next door?"

"No," said Mrs. Allenby, resuming her book.

Every day Ronald Smith appeared with his pail for water. One morning he brought a great armful of yellow roses, that had been Mrs. Allenby's pride and joy at Big House. "Mother sent these to Mrs. Allenby," he said simply, and went on around by the brick walk.

"Mother!" exclaimed Mrs. Allenby. "Never let him know that I thought him the butler!"

"Or the chauffeur!" laughed Ann and then she told her mother what she had learned that first day.

"Then, he must be the electrical engineer," decided Mrs. Allenby. "I wonder," she mused, "why he did not repair their pump after that first day."

"I wonder!" echoed Ann, but there was a pink flush in her cheeks, and a tender look in her eyes, for her meeting with young Smith, though brief had been full of interest. Mrs. Allenby put aside her plan of summer idle ness, and sending for the village taxi cab she paid a state call upon Mrs. Smith, who turned out to be so de lightful a woman of her own social rank, with so many congenial acquaintances who were also friends of Mrs. Allenby's, that a very warm friendship grew rapidly between them.

"Ronnie is just spending the summer with me," explained Mrs. Smith one day.

The two ladies exchanged a smile, for Ronald Smith and Ann had fallen desperately in love with each other, and it was not long before they became engaged.

Then Ronald announced his desire to live with Mrs. Allenby at White Cottage. "Of course, you can have a household—and more, if you wish," he told Ann and her mother one day, "but for my part, I can be both butler and chauffeur, if necessary!"

TOY PISTOL STOPPED PARADE OF ROYALTY

London, July 5.—(UP)—Just as the carriage carrying King Fuad of Egypt, King George of England, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York was passing Victoria street, Westminster, in yesterday's state procession, two loud reports were heard.

GOOD HOME LOST

A tramp asked a farmer's wife one day for a piece of bread. As she gave him a piece of pie she said:

"Poor fellow, you look as if you'd seen better days."

"Yes, so I have, ma'am," said the tramp. He shoveled about a cubic foot of pie into his mouth with his knife and said: "Once I dwell in marble halls."

"And how," said the farmer's wife. "did you come to lose such a nice home?"

"Term expired," said the tramp.
